Sec. Perkins in Conference with Coal Operators; Asks Reopening

Cabinet Officer Enters Deadlocked Negotiations; Steelman Expects Early Settlement

NEW YORK, April 14 (AP)—Secretary of Labor Perkins entered deadlocked soft coal wage negotiations personally tonight, but declined to say what she would tell management and union negotiators.

She walked into the night session beginning shortly after 8 p. m. (EST) between Northern Appalachian bituminous operators representing thirty-five per cent of the country's production and the United Mine Workers of America (U. M. W.), repeating her action of two years ago at the last contract negotiations.

"I have nothing to say at this time," Miss Perkins declared. "I am just going in to talk with them."

After conferring with the negotiators for an hour and twenty minutes, Miss Perkins emerged from the conference, saying she had another engagement and would not return to the meeting.

"There's nothing much I have to say," she told reporters, "I had a very pleasant meeting with the gentlemen. I answered some questions."

Steelman Optimistic

When the conference adjourned shortly before 11 p. m., Dr. John R. Steelman, chief of the government conciliation service, said Miss Perkins had stressed the "intense" desire of the government for an early resumption of operations in at least some of the mines, and in all of them as soon as possible.

He expressed belief Miss Perkins' visit was "very profitable for all of us," adding there was reason to hope some of the mines could be reopened "within a very short while."

During today's sessions, Steelman said, an attempt was made to iron out minor points in the proposed contract and he added there had been some discussion of a reopening on the basis of a contract alone without any retroactive clause which the miners have insisted upon.

The negotiators adjourned until 4 p. m. (EST) tomorrow, Dr. Steelman said.

Four Killed in Prison Break of 3 at Sing Sing

One Convict Shot and Three Others Also Meet Death

OSSINING, N. Y., April 14 (AP)—Armed with smuggled guns and crudely-made keys three desperate, long-term convicts broke from Sing Sing prison today and after seven drama-packed hours, four persons were dead, including one of the fugitives, and the other felons were captured.

Warden Lewis E. Lawes said there would be "a couple of murder trials," as a result of the trio's short-lived bid for freedom which cost the lives of a guard, a city policeman and a convict whose heart failed in the melee.

Feigning illness, Joseph "Whitey" Rioridan, 24, and John Waters, 30, gained entrance to the prison infirmary where their co-conspirator, Charles McGale, 45, was a trusty. All from New York City, they were serving sentences for armed robbery and had plotted for six months to escape.

Use Smuggled Guns

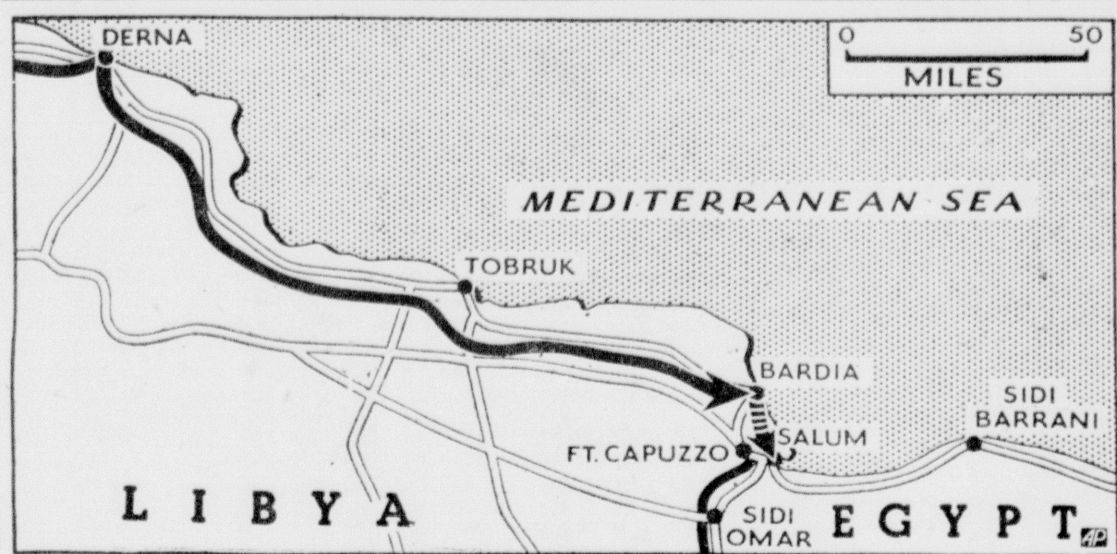

The three men suddenly whipped out guns smuggled to them in a milk truck by outside confederates and shot John Harte, a prison guard. During the excitement, McGovern Miller, 35, convicted rapist receiving treatment for a heart ailment, collapsed and died of shock.

Patients in the infirmary were cowed into silence and it was almost an hour later before the Sing Sing warden waited the escape alarm—the first it had sounded in eight years.

AXIS ARMORED FORCES CAPTURE BARDIA

German and Italian armored forces made another smashing advance across eastern Libya, capturing Bardia, only 10 miles from the Egyptian frontier. They swept past Tobruk, Libyan port city where the British reportedly were prepared to make a stand against them. Cairo said that the action had not cut communications between the British forces at Tobruk and Cairo, but said fighting was in progress at Salum, on the Egyptian-Libyan border. Black arrows indicate the approximate route of Axis troops as they rushed along the Mediterranean coast from bases in the west.

Two German Battleships Believed Badly Damaged

LONDON, April 14 (AP)—Failure of the Germans to remove their 26,000-ton battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst from their bomb-scarred berths at Brest, France, was regarded here tonight as an indication both fighting vessels had suffered damage.

Danish Minister Upheld in Tilt With the Danes

Break over Signing of Greenland Agreement Unsettled

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—In an unprecedented diplomatic tangle growing out of the acquisition of American defense bases in Greenland, the United States today upheld the Danish minister here in a break with the government of German-occupied Denmark and refused to recognize an order recalling him.

Hendrik De Kauffman, who signed the Greenland agreement last week and was ordered home as a result, was informed by Secretary of State Hull that he would continue to be recognized as "the duly authorized minister of Denmark in Washington."

The American government agreed with the minister that the Copenhagen government was "acting under duress" in recalling him and expressed hope "for the speedy liberation of Denmark."

Diplomatic Tangle Grows

A unique diplomatic situation grew out of the actions of the Danish minister and the American government.

The United States still maintains a diplomatic staff in Denmark, although the American minister, Ray Atherton, was brought home several months ago and placed in charge of the European division of the state department.

A possibility considered here was that the Danish government, acting under German pressure, might formally break off relations with the United States, thus forcing this country to take action.

Greece Reports Success in All Efforts To Halt German Advance

ATHENS, April 14 — Germany's opening feints for the battle of Greece have been parried all along the British-Greek front, Greek dispatches said tonight.

One of these feints, apparently an action of last Friday, came from a division of Adolf Hitler's own elite guard, British quarters reported.

Tonight the Greek government spokesman said: "German mechanized units displayed activity devoid of general importance and only of a local character. Greek formations yesterday held positions assigned to them according to plans."

406,000 Workers In Steel Plants Get Wage Boosts

United States Steel Corporation and Bethlehem Take Initiative

PITTSBURGH, April 14 (AP)—Four hundred and six thousand steel workers, approximately two-thirds of the steel industry's total, were granted ten cents an hour wage increases today by the United States Steel Corporation and three other large producers.

Similar increases previously had been extended to 20,000 employees of the National Steel Corporation and about 5,000 workers in smaller plants, bringing the $5.80 a day wage to a total of 431,000 workers.

On the basis of full time employment, the increase adds about $90,000,000 annually to the workers' pay envelopes. U. S. Steel's increase for 240,000 workers alone was estimated at $44,000,000 additional by a joint company-CIO conference upon signing a new wage contract.

Other Companies Boost Pay

In addition to U. S. Steel, companies granting the increase today were Bethlehem Steel Company, second largest producer with 90,000 workers; Republic Steel Corporation, third largest with 50,000 and Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, with 26,000.

In all cases, the increases were made retroactive to April 1. The workers will earn a minimum of 72½ cents an hour, giving them $4 extra for each forty-hour week.

Others May Follow

Today's action by "Big Steel" and the others was expected to be followed within a short time by other companies, so that eventually about $125,000,000 will be added to the industry's payrolls.

The reaction of the wage increases on steel prices was not yet apparent but U. S. Steel announced in New York it was studying the effect of the "heavy additional" expenses would have upon company earnings and prices. Steel observers have predicted that a steel wage boost, accompanied by an increase in miners' wages, would cause a price rise.

Walkout Averted

U. S. Steel's increase along with improved vacations and other changes in working conditions, was embodied in a new contract signed by the CIO's Steel Workers Organizing committee and the corporation after three weeks of negotiations.

Signing of the pact, essentially an extension of an agreement signed in 1937, averted a CIO walkout which had been scheduled for Tuesday midnight in the corporation's sixty-nine plants.

Rep. Rich Defies Ickes To Call Him a Nazi

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—Representative Rich (R-Pa.) shouted on the House floor today that he defied Secretary Ickes to call him a Nazi for agreeing with some of the defense theories of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

Rich referred to a speech yesterday in which Ickes called Lindbergh a "Nazi Fellow-Traveler."

"Lindbergh," said Rich, "is just as good an American as anyone in the country."

Flight from Two Harbors and from Beaches Reported By Hitler Press

Thirty Thousands Tons of British Transports Sunk in Piraeus Harbor, Berlin Asserts

BERLIN, April 14 (AP)—Declaring the British were starting to flee precipitately from Greece, using both harbors and beaches, German press dispatches tonight reported the Nazi dive-bombers had sunk 30,000 tons of British transports in the Athenian harbor of Piraeus.

Transports and supply ships totaling another 80,000 tons were said by the official German news agency DNB to have been "severely damaged."

(The British wireless without specifically mentioning the German report of British evacuation from Greece in effect denied it by stating that "strong British reinforcements are now moving up to front lines in Greece.") The broadcast was heard in the United States by CBS.)

Another Dunkerque

The Germans have contended ever since the British troops landed in Greece that the Hellenic peninsula would be another Dunkerque.

It was presumed by Germans that the British were unable to find enough Greek ports for rapid embarkation, so were leaving from the shores along the open sea.

At the same time, the German expeditionary force in Africa was declared by the high command to have firmly established itself on Egyptian soil and to have occupied Salum, inside the Egyptian border.

This force was reported still heading eastward — with Alexandria and the Suez canal within the range of military possibilities.

Bombers Attack Transports

At Tobruk, port of Libya, ninety miles west of the Egyptian border, German press dispatches said Nazi dive-bombers were hammering at transports seeking to take off the British garrison which the Germans said were encircled.

British Minister Tells D. A. R. War Crisis Has Come

Butler Says Germans Must Win Now or They Never Will

By RUTH COWAN
WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—British Minister Neville M. Butler told the daughters of the American Revolution tonight that the European war is now in its decisive phase.

Butler was the keynote speaker at the opening session of the D. A. R. Golden Jubilee Continental Congress, and it was the first time in the organization's history that such a spot on the program had been given a member of the foreign diplomatic corps.

"This is no doubt the crucial period of the war at sea," said Butler, "and if the Germans do not strangle us now they never will. For the forces arrayed against them are growing stronger."

He noted that the United States had just sent a group of "invaluable coast guard cutters" that their own new destroyers and planes are going into action, and that they are getting and building more long-distance aircraft to patrol the danger zones.

Mrs. Henry M. Robert, Jr., of Annapolis, Md., the president general opened the Congress. More than 4,000 delegates and alternates, handsomely gowned, were present.

Capital Blackouts Asked by Randolph

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—A bill (HR4342) providing for a series of experimental "blackouts" for the nation's capital and its Virginia and Maryland suburbs was introduced in the House by Representative Randolph (D-W.Va.).

Randolph said that Secretary Stimson had endorsed the plan.

Short-Run Outlook for Allies Bad, Experts Say

American Observers Alarmed over Prospects Axis Will Make Sweep of Mediterranean

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—Highly competent observers took an exceedingly gloom view tonight of the short-run prospects of the British and their Allies in the terrific struggle now raging in the Balkans and Northern Africa.

The question being asked was not whether the British, the Greeks and the Yugoslavs can stop the Nazis where they are, but whether they can prevent the foe from making a clean sweep of the whole Eastern Mediterranean, including Egypt, the Suez Canal and the middle east oil fields.

Officials said that they had no information to substantiate the statements of DNB, the official German news agency, that the British were already fleeing from Greece; that they were re-embarking not only at harbors but along the shores of the open sea.

Some highly placed persons expressed doubt that this particular report was true, for two reasons:

1. The British, they believed, could hardly "run out" on their Allies.

2. Even if they should decide to evacuate their army from Greece, it is questionable whether they could do so with anything like complete success. The risks of re-embarkation from Aegean ports under the fire of Nazi bombers based in Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and even in Eastern Greece would be terrible.

Despite reports from many quarters that the British had succeeded in getting a formidable army of 200,000 or more men to Greece, informed persons here have been saying privately all along that it was hardly larger than a "token force"—say 50,000 or 60,000 men.

Not Extremely Serious

If that force should be defeated and all of Greece taken, observers here would consider it a blow to the Allies.

Masses of Serbs Drive Against Italian Forces

ROME, April 14 (AP)—Masses of shouting Serbs are hurling themselves by land and speedboat against Italian defenses at the Northern Albanian lakeshore town of Scuteri, Fascist dispatches from the Balkan front said tonight.

Accounts of the violent fighting there were coupled with reports of further Fascist penetration of Yugoslavia in the south, an advance through broken Greek lines toward Corizza (Korizza), first major Italian base captured by the Greeks in the Albanian counter-invasion last fall, and a high command announcement that the British have been thrown back across the Egyptian border on the North African front.

A Rome broadcast heard in New York by CBS announced that Corizza, held by the Greeks since Nov. 22, had been captured by Mussolini's Ninth army.

The Yugoslavs were declared checked or driven back by Fascist assaults everywhere along the 420-mile front.

The Greeks, according to Il Giornale d'Italia, have brought up their last three divisions of reserves to stem the Italian march of several army corps to the south.

Senators Testify at "Shakedown" Inquiry

BALTIMORE, April 14 (AP)—Five state senators who as members of the Senate's Temperance committee heard testimony concerning an alleged "shakedown," appeared today at the courthouse here. Several of them went before the grand jury.

The senators were Philip H. Dorsey of St. Mary's county, chairman of the committee; Clifford Friend of Garrett county; John G. Gallan of the second Baltimore district; Earl Bennett of Dorchester county; and Wilmer Fell Davis of Caroline county.

The British meanwhile reported fighting continued about Salum, inside the Egyptian frontier, and Tobruk, Axis besieged Libyan port, with little change in the fighting lines.

Egyptian Chamber Considers War Situation; British Battle Axis

CAIRO, Egypt, April 14 (AP)—While British forces fiercely resisted the new Axis advance into Egypt, the Egyptian Chamber of Deputies met secretly tonight to discuss what defense steps the country would take.

This question was to be put by the Chamber to Premier Hussein Sirry Pasha following conferences today with General Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander-in-chief of Britain's army of the Nile, and heads of the chief Egyptian political parties.

Wavell also called on minister of defense Bey Hassan Sadek, after which the cabinet met before the premier called the chamber into session to hear his statement on the situation.

Troops Withdrawn To New Positions, War Office Says

Of German Report Axis Infantry and Tank Attack Repulsed Near Tobruk, Official Statement Declares

LONDON, April 15 — (Tuesday) (AP)—Thousands of British Imperial troops are being rushed from the Italian East African front to Egypt in an effort to stem the German onrush toward the Suez Canal, it was understood here today.

LONDON, April 14 (AP)—British troops have withdrawn to new positions on the eastern sector of the Greek front, the war office acknowledged tonight, but have repulsed with heavy losses an Axis infantry and tank attack on the outer defenses of besieged Tobruk, Libya.

"Severe casualties," the communique said, were inflicted by British covering troops during the Balkan withdrawal (apparently west of Salonika) but in the center of that front, the British asserted "persistent German attacks" failed in the face of heavy British fire.

Although an earlier communique said "the situation has been completely restored" by the repulse of the attack on Tobruk and the infliction of "considerable casualties" on the Germans near Salum, the British public did not share this confident tone.

Instead, the mounting threat of German's North African and Balkan forces caused many Britons to bid farewell to "comfortable illusions."

Axis Forces Bombed

Heavy bombing by the British middle east air force were reported to have caused severe damages to the Axis air machines in both Africa and the Balkans.

A German bomber and fighter plane were said to have been shot down when the British said they dispersed a formation in the Corizza, (Korizza) Albania, area.

American Policy Not Changed by Russo-Jap Pact

Significance "Could Be Overestimated", Sec. Hull Declares

By J. C. CLARK
WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—American policy in both Europe and Asia today was declared "unchanged" by the new Russian-Japanese "neutrality" pact which was viewed officially as merely formalizing a relationship long existing between the two eastern powers.

Secretary of State Hull expressed the government's attitude towards the pact in a formal statement which declared its significance "could be overestimated" and that it came as no surprise.

"The agreement," he said, "would seem to be descriptive of a situation which has in effect existed between the two countries for some time past."

"It therefore comes as no surprise, although there has existed doubt whether the two governments would or would not agree to say it in writing."

As to its effect on the United States, Secretary Hull declared bluntly:

War Department To Tell How To Build Shelters

Instructions for Protection against Air Raids Soon To Be Issued

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—Instructions for building air-raid shelters and protecting civilians against air attacks will be published next week by the war department.

Announcing today, that distribution of a pamphlet entitled "Civil Defense Protective Construction" would begin April 23, the department said its appearance should not be taken as a signal to start work immediately on such structures.

It is being published, it said, in order to make the information available to responsible civilian officials and civilian engineers so that they may consider not only the designs involved but procedures to be followed in their respective localities "should the situation change."

The pamphlet, first of a series, will include not only designs for air-raid shelters of various sizes but will describe methods for protecting large buildings, public utilities and industrial plants.

Prepared after a study of the effect of bombing raids in the European war, the pamphlet will include illustrations of the proper method of using sandbags to protect walls and the general requirements for shelters in existing buildings.

To aid engineers in working out plans for such defenses the pamphlet will devote considerable space to the types of bombs and other weapons used in aerial attacks.

Court Rules U. S. Judge Is Limited In Contempt Case

Offense Must Occur Near Courtroom, 5-3 Decision Says

By WILLIAM R. SPEAR

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—Upsetting a 23-year-old doctrine, the Supreme Court ruled in a 5-3 decision today that a federal judge cannot mete out summary punishment for contempt unless the offense occurs in the vicinity of his courtroom.

The ruling dealt only with cases where a judge summarily cites an offender for contempt. Acts obstructing justice which are committed away from the courtroom may still be punished as criminal contempt but in these cases, said the majority opinion by Justice Douglas, the accused must be formally "afforded the normal safeguards surrounding criminal proceedings," such as a trial by jury.

This limitation upon the authority of judges to cite for contempt specifically overruled a 1918 case in which the Toledo (O.) News Bee was cited summarily for criticizing court proceedings in connection with street railway fares. The federal district judge held that the publication had a "reasonable tendency" to provoke public resistance to an injunction.

Interprets Old Law

The Supreme Court's decision was an interpretation of a federal statute of 1857 defining the contempt powers of federal courts and was not concerned with late laws.

The case decided today involved an alleged attempt by R. H. Nye and L. C. Mayers of Luberton, N. C., to persuade W. H. Elmore of Conway, S. C., to drop a $50,000 damage suit against the B. C. Railway Company following the death of Elmore's son. Nye was related by marriage to a partner in the company and Mayers was a tenant of Nye's who was acquainted with Elmore.

The court said that W. L. Elmore was "illiterate, and feeble in mind and body" and that the defendants used "liquor and persuasion" to induce him to drop the suit. Although, as the court noted, "these events took place more than 100 miles from Durham, N. C., where the district court was located," the two were victims of contempt for acting "with intent to obstruct and to prevent the trial of the case on its merits," and fined.

Admits Obstruction

"We may concede that there was an obstruction in the administration of justice," the Supreme Court said but "it was not misbehavior in the vicinity of the court disrupting to quiet and order or actually interrupting the court in the conduct of its business" and therefore "if petitioners can be punished for their misconduct, it may be under the criminal code." This specifies that offenders be prosecuted "by indictment."

Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Roberts and Stone, in a dissenting opinion written by the latter, complained that the majority's conditions "ignore the entire history of the judicial interpretation of the statute."

agency, DNB, reported the British were attempting to escape Tobruk by sea under a Dunkerque-like bombardment by German Stukas.)

British reinforcements from East Africa, where mop-up operations continued against the broken Italian defenders, have been reported sent to the army of the Nile, others into the Balkans, with the possible result that Britain now may have to call on Egypt for manpower.

Allied with Britain, but non-belligerent, the task of Egypt's small army has been chiefly to man defenses in the Suez area since the outbreak of the war.

How near the country is to its planned army of 100,000 men by the end of 1941 is not known. The latest available reports were that Egypt had a standing army of 22,500 in 1938, the training of which was taken over by British officers early in 1940.

country to withdraw its diplomatic and consular officials from Denmark.

Will Disregard Orders

Minister De Kauffmann, asserting that he would disregard the recall order, wrote Secretary Hull in a formal note that he believed it "to be my duty towards my king and my country to carry on the work that was entrusted to me when I was appointed Danish minister to Washington by a free Danish government."

The state department, in making public the exchange of notes, said that no act of the government in Denmark, since that country was occupied by German troops on April 9, 1940, has been taken or can be taken save with the consent of the occupying power or as a result of its dictation.

The break between the minister here and the government in Copenhagen had been impending for months. Before he signed the Greenland agreement he disregarded orders from Copenhagen to protest over American seizure of thirty-nine Danish merchant ships.

unlocked two barred passageways and crawled through a service tunnel to a railroad siding outside the prison wall.

Barely away from the prison grounds, the convicts had a chance meeting with a cruising Oseining police patrol car.

Waters and Patrolman James Fagan, 32, were killed in the resulting gun battle. Riordan and McGale fled toward the Hudson river and forced Charles Rhr, Jr., a shad fisherman to row them across.

Once on the opposite shore, Riordan and McGale plunged into the deeply wooded Palisades interstate park.

The walling escape alarm set into action one of the greatest searches the area has ever seen. A low-flying state police plane and four coast guard's vessels patrolling the Hudson aided a posse of 250 prison guards, state and park police and officers from the river towns.

Less than a mile from the shore point from which they had fled Riordan and McGale, dazed and apparently bereft of fight, were flushed out by a heavily-armed posse headed by Patrolman William Mullen, a veteran woodsman member of the park police.

Although still armed, they offered no resistance.

Short Run

the Allies, but not necessarily an extremely serious one, provided the Nazi gains stopped there.

After all, it is pointed out, one of the purposes of opening a front in the Balkans was to create a diversion, to draw some of the German strength away from the main theater of the war, the Atlantic in and about England. The "token" force would thus have served a good purpose, it is argued, even though only for a short time.

Alarmed over Egypt

But the amazing thrust of the Germans along the North African coast to Egypt is considered something else again. There is evidence, it is said, that the British miscalculated the strength of this German operation, which already has done much of the damage General Archibald Wavell's men inflicted on the Axis cause when they were pitted against the Italians.

It is this North African thrust, taken in conjunction with the situation in the Balkans that makes experts here fear for the safety of Egypt and the Suez. This, in turn, is leading some persons to wonder whether it will be any use for the United States to rush supplies to Egypt.

Even if the whole Eastern Mediterranean front collapsed there would be no disposition here to consider the war lost to the British and their Allies. Far from it. But there is also no attempt to disguise the fact that it would enormously complicate the situation.

Week of Firing Practice Begins At Camp Meade

Infantry Forces Using New-Type Rifles and Machine Guns

PORT GEORGE, G. MEADE, Md., April 14 (AP)—The One Hundred Sixteenth Infantry today began a week of firing practice on the post range, with all officers and men of the Virginia regiment scheduled to fire latest type rifles and some units also to receive instructions on machine guns.

The regiment, commanded by Col. E. W. Ople, now consists of 1,368 enlisted men and 120 officers and is preparing to receive its first group of selectees.

They are expected to join the division sometime next week, it was said today.

Many Troops Coming Soon
During the next few weeks enough selections will be taken into the regiment to bring it up to its wartime quota of approximately 2,600 men. So far as possible, the recruits will be Virginia draftees.

Members of one battalion of the One-hundred twenty-first engineers regiment, from Washington, also were on the known distance range today for target practice.

Tomorrow the regiment will begin bayonet practice and grenade throwing, and will work on guarding, patrolling and other subjects that have been delayed because of bad weather.

The engineers also are getting ready for preliminary instruction in chemical warfare work.

Only Two Barracks Lacking
Except for two barracks, all the regimental buildings are completed and ready for the additional men.

Division headquarters announced that during the week approximately 1,500 selectees would be assigned to various divisional units.

About 800 of these will go to the three field artillery regiments of the fifty-fourth brigade—the one-hundred eleventh Virginia, the one-hundred tenth Maryland and the one-seventy-sixth Pennsylvania—and men will then be assigned to the One Hundred fourth quarter-master regiment.

Including today's 225 selectees, the strength of the 29th division is 9,547 enlisted men and during the next few weeks enough selectees are to be added to bring its number up to 17,945 men.

report added, were successfully bombed and machine gunned.

Additional bombers were said to have straddled the custom house and power station and left one ship burning fiercely in Tripoli, Libyan port from which the Axis African advance started.

British Lose Seven Planes

The British acknowledged the loss of seven planes in their middle east, Balkan operations which also included cleanup attacks in Ethiopia and defense operations over Malta. News that the Germans had rushed more than 400 miles in the past seven days and to Salum, within Egypt, forced realistic watchers of the situation to visualize a decisive African battle by the very gates of Alexandria, seat of Britain's Mediterranean naval power.

Though the war office communique announcing the withdrawal in Greece told of "severe casualties" inflicted on the Germans, the British public still recognized it for what it was—another setback. The withdrawal was made Saturday night, with the Germans reported maintaining continuous pressure.

Hitler's Division Defeated
An earlier British report had told of Germany's "SS Adolf Hitler" motorized division being thrown back with heavy losses in Greece.

Even the most optimistic observers in their frequent reminders about Germany's long, vulnerable lines of communication have admitted that a major campaign could be waged across the Egyptian desert, despite the terrific summer heat.

The lack of official information recalled the dark days of last spring when the Nazis overran Norway then the low countries and finally France.

The full impact of the Libyan and Balkan reverses has hit the British public slowly. A bright side, it seemed, could be found in every setback. But today the two powerful London papers, the Daily Mail and Daily Herald, demanded fact-facing in strong language.

See Colossal Task

Said the Mail: "It is common sense to realize that British forces in North Africa and Greece are facing a colossal task, and it is no service to them to pretend otherwise. A good deal of nonsense has been written and spoken about Germany's extended and vulnerable lines of communication. The same thing was heard when they thrust deeply into France."

The Herald charged that the people had been "constantly distracted by writers and speakers who seek quite superfluously to cheer them up."

"The present is dark and the immediate future not bright," admitted the ultra-conservative Times. Reaction to the current setbacks probably is keener because they came so soon after the British naval victory over the Italians in the battle of Matapan, Yugoslavia's pro-British revolution and the crushing of Italian East Africa.

James Roosevelt Takes Nurse for His Second Wife

Weds Romelle Schneider in Presence of Mother and a Few Guests

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., April 14 (AP)—James Roosevelt, 33, whose career swung from the nation's capital to the film capital, took as his second wife today a brown-eyed nurse he met while undergoing an operation at a Rochester, Minn., hospital.

The eldest son of the president was married to Romelle Theresa Schneider, 25, in a simple, civil ceremony which was attended by a small group of guests, including his mother, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who came from the east by plane.

Municipal Judge Arthur Guerin read the service at the home of George P. Converse and Mrs. Converse, the former actress, Anita Stewart.

Roosevelt and his bride exchanged vows before an altar banked with Easter lilies. She wore a beige, semi-tailored suit and carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Just before the ceremony Roosevelt gave her a diamond and ruby bracelet.

25 Guests at Wedding

Among the twenty-five guests were Jimmy's mother, his sister, Mrs. Anna Boettiger and her husband, John Boettiger, Seattle publisher; the bride's mother, Mrs. Agnes Schneider; her brother, George, Notre Dame University student, and her two sisters, Mrs. L. P. Tubbs and Phyllis Schneider, Jimmy's secretary.

Roosevelt was divorced last year by the former Betsey Cushing of Boston.

Following a luncheon, the couple left on a brief honeymoon at an undisclosed spot. A captain in the Marine Corps at San Diego, Roosevelt must return to duty Thursday.

May Be Sent to Cairo

He expressed surprise at a report he might be transferred to Cairo, Egypt, adding that he hoped to remain in Southern California. For the present they will live in San Diego.

The romance of the tall, baldish Roosevelt and Miss Schneider began after he went to Rochester for a stomach operation in 1938. He came to Hollister, Calif., ranch to recuperate, resigning as secretary to the president. Miss Schneider accompanied him. She is a native of Independence, Wis.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt planned to leave tonight by American Airlines plane to keep a speaking engagement in North Carolina tomorrow.

of course, remains unchanged." This meant that the pact would have no effect on the government's aid to Britain program or on the attitude it has taken in recent months toward the Far East.

Hull's statement was carefully prepared after consultation among the highest state department officials. Some significance was seen in the fact that his language had a close resemblance to the statement he issued when Japan joined Germany and Italy in the tripartite pact last September.

Situation Not Altered

That agreement, Hull said, did not "substantially alter a situation which has existed for several years," and the announcement of the alliance "merely makes clear to all a relationship which has long existed in effect and to which this government has repeatedly called attention."

The new pact was believed to have resulted from a mutual desire in Russia and Japan to avoid conflict with each other at this unsettled stage of world affairs. Under the pact, each nation agrees to remain neutral in case the other becomes the "object of military action on the part of one or several powers."

Coin Club Will Meet Here Wednesday

Charles H. Hyde has promised several surprises for the meeting of the Western Maryland Coin Club at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at the library of the Central Y. M. C. A., when plans will be made for the Hobby Show the club is sponsoring, April 21 to 25, at Emmanuel Episcopal parish house.

army of the Nile, is that he was too optimistic, and there have been indications that his London superiors have tried to tone him down.

He still commands unstinted respect and confidence among military men, however, and they say he will turn on the Germans in North Africa at the best possible time and place.

Confusion has been caused in recent days by an apparent misunderstanding between authorities in London and Cairo as to which was to release certain news. A sweeping order had said all British military information should be made public from London, but last night London sources were absolutely silent on the subject of Bardia at about the same time the Cairo spokesman was announcing that German troops had entered the Libyan city.

Sec. Perkins in man described the next session as likely to be "a very important one." It was understood she might state the government's position in the prolonged negotiations and the work stoppage which shut down ninety per cent of the nation's production two weeks ago.

The Southern Appalachian producers, who also represented about thirty-five per cent of the national output, bolted the General Appalachian Conference last week on the grounds that the union and northern operators were attempting to impose on the south wage conditions the region was unable to bear.

Steelmen Asks Recess

The union, northern operators and Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the United States conciliation service, resumed negotiations after a week-end recess, but Steelman in mid-afternoon asked a recess until tonight.

Meanwhile, Southern operators assembled in Washington to prepare briefs in which they would state their case in event the deadlock was certified to the National Mediation Board.

Meanwhile, repercussions resulting from the stoppage, the labor management deadlock and the schism between the northern and southern industrialists, were heard elsewhere in the nation.

At Frankfort, Ky., Governor Keen Johnson announced his support of the Southern coal operators by promising to help prevent elimination of the wage differential between the north and the south.

Says South Cannot Pay

Heretofore, the Appalachian contract which sets the wage and hour standards for the entire industry, provided a $5.60 a day basic wage in the south and $6 in the north. The union is asking a flat $7 a day basic wage, thus eliminating the 40-cent-a-day differential.

Northern Appalachian operators have agreed to this union demand. Governor Johnson said freight rate advantages of northern operators have made it impossible for southern mines to pay high wages.

At their Washington meeting, southern operators, organizing their own "Southern Coal Operators Wage Conference" to negotiate separately with the union, declared that the northern group and the union were "strangling the nation in its defense program" by holding out a new wage-hour agreement until the southerners agreed to it.

They reiterated the offer of a eleven per cent wage increase and to reopen production pending settlement of other union demands.

Coal Shortages Dangerous

L. Ebersole Gaines, chairman of the conference, said coal shortages were becoming dangerous and that renewed production immediately "is a matter of grave national importance."

The war department meanwhile said it was informed the Peeries Woolen Mills at Rossville, Ga., would have to halt work on army blankets and overcoat cloth if coal supplies were not replenished, but a company official declared later there was no immediate danger of a shortage.

"We merely asked the war department to hasten negotiations in the soft coal strike," the spokesman said.

From Youngstown, Ohio, came word that Republic Steel Corporation officials said the work stoppage caused the "premature" closing of a blast furnace, the imminent closing of another, and the slowing down of coke production in the corporation's coke plant.

Police Enter Apartment To Find Woman Bleeding From Large Cut in Head

Four city policemen were coming off duty this morning at 1 o'clock and as they were almost to the public safety building they heard a crash in an upstairs apartment at 47 North Liberty street.

Entering the apartment they found a woman who is known as Virginia Young, stretched out on the floor. Also in the room was Mrs. Katie Miller, 47 North Liberty street.

The Young woman was bleeding from a large cut on the right side of her head. Nearby laid a beer bottle broken off at the neck. The police arrested Mrs. Miller and then took the injured woman to Memorial hospital.

Another woman who gave her name as Carrie Grayson, no address, was held as a witness in the case. The arrest was made by Officers Bert B. Browne, R. N. Nuse, George W. Deffenbaugh, and Harold P. Kennard.

Temperature Soars In Baltimore Area

BALTIMORE, April 14 (AP)—A record high temperature for April 14 was recorded today by the Baltimore office of the weather bureau when the thermometer went to ninety degrees in mid-afternoon.

Higher April temperatures seldom before have been recorded here. There was a period in 1929 when the temperature hit the ninety-degree mark three days running.

With the heat on generally throughout the region, the forecast was for continued warm weather tomorrow with increasing cloudiness and rain late tomorrow and Wednesday.

Fire department officials said they had answered more than eighty-five alarms between midnight last night and late afternoon. The majority of the fires, they said, were brush and field fires indirectly caused by heat and lack of rain.

the clerks' union in order that the present controversy might be settled once and for all."

As a result of the new contract presented last night, the merchants' representatives released the following statement: "The retail clerks and merchants' representatives practically agreed on all terms of the new union agreement. Final negotiations, however, hit a snag when at the close of the meeting it developed that the president of the clerks' union and two other employees working in the shipping department at Rosenbaums Department Store claimed that they had recently given up their membership in the clerks' union and were now members of the teamsters."

This new contract proposed, dropped on to the table after the principles concerned had been discussing one for the clerks for six hours, came as a distinct surprise.

Smith, stepping into the breach, suggested an additional two weeks for the negotiation of this second contract. The session broke up soon afterwards.

Representatives of the union including Louis Comba, international representative, had little to report other than the fact "that all issues were discussed at two conferences which lasted six hours."

Bowling Leaders Are Unchanged

ST. PAUL, April 14 (AP)—The leaders of the American Bowling Congress tournament remained unchanged today.

Best score in the doubles was by Eugene Williams and Virgil Harker of Defiance, O., who posted 1,221. Charles Higgins and Bob Audsley, Kansas City, had 1,220.

William Marx, Peoria, Ill., rolled the best series of the day, 690, but his games of 190, 242 and 258, came in the doubles. His partner, Joe Gorenz, was unable to find the range and settled for only 499, as the pair tallied 1,189.

Benny Cole, Akron, O., rolled up 1,839 in the all-events, to boost his ten-year average to 201.18. His series was 585, team; 610 doubles, and 643 in the singles. Ned Day, West Allis, Wis., tops the ten-year men with an average of 204.23 for the ninety games.

year the bugs are full grown and hard to kill.

The Garden-Graph shows a close-up of the squash bug. It also shows how these bugs may be tricked and trapped by placing a small piece of board or shingle on the ground near the squash vines. The squash bugs will congregate under the board. The traps should be examined every morning and the bugs killed. The squash vine borer is a whitish caterpillar which tunnels in the stems of the vines. Its presence can be detected by small piles of sawdust. Its excavating work in the stems causes the leaves to wilt. The most effective way of getting rid of this borer is to slit the stem lengthwise and then crush the borer. If you cover the stem with earth where it has been slit, new roots are apt to form at that point.

Property Owner Asks $10,000 for Land at Airport

Securing Right-of-Way from Railway also Obstacle to City's Plans

Rufus Lamp is asking $10,000 from the City of Cumberland for the use of a parcel of his land in Wiley Ford for the construction of a road and water line to the new municipal airport, it was learned yesterday at city hall.

The securing of the right-of-way from the Western Maryland Railway Company is the other obstacle in the way of starting preliminary work at the airport site.

It was indicated that the right-of-way agreement from the railway company is expected to arrive at any time and if an understanding is not reached with the land owner on property, expectations are that the city will condemn. Under West Virginia law the city will be able to take possession of a condemned piece of land in ten days.

First work on the project will consist of removing timber and getting the land ready for excavation. Governor Herbert R. O'Connor is expected to sign today or tomorrow the bill authorizing the mayor and city council to sell $150,000 worth of bonds to provide its share of money for the airport.

Announcement Made Of Examinations for Civil Service Positions

Civil service examinations for the positions described below were announced yesterday by the United States Civil Service Commission.

They include: the position of social worker, $2,000 a year; Veterans Administration and Bureau of Prisons in the Department of Justice.

Square Deal

led in May for that year—not forty-five per cent more business—but fifty-five per cent more, and they did it without congestion, delay or difficulty, and still had an average daily surplus of more than 66,000 serviceable freight cars.

Prepared for 1941

"Now, how are the railroads set to meet the demands of 1941?"

"The important question before the railroads is what amount of traffic can be expected from the preparedness program."

"A very careful estimate indicates that the increased annual steel output, maintenance of 3,000,000 troops, and material for camp construction would involve an average rail movement of approximately 25,000 carloads a week, or about four per cent of the average weekly carloadings in 1939."

"There the further question is, 'How much will the normal commercial load be increased as a result of the preparedness program? Some assume that it will be less, and some say it will be more, with nothing real definite to justify either contention. But let's just double the preparedness load and we find that would mean 50,000 carloads a week, or less than eight per cent of the average weekly carloadings in 1939."

"Then the question is 'What is the car situation dealing with the load? There will be in service on October 1, 1941, not less than 135,000 new cars that have been put in service since October 1, 1939, and October 1939, was the month when the railroads handled without any difficulty the sharpest increase in business ever recorded in the history of our American railroads."

"Today's freight cars are bigger and better; today's locomotives are more powerful and more efficient. These cars and locomotives run on better tracks and through better terminals, and are protected by better signals—which accounts for the fact that today's freight trains are two-thirds faster than those of 1918. Moreover, today's freight trains turn out more than twice as much transportation service per hour, as the freight trains of 1918."

Benefited From 1917

"From the experiences of 1917 and 1918 everybody—the railroads, the shippers and the government—have benefited."

"Here the question is asked, however, 'Did not the railroads break down in handling the load of 1917?'"

"The answer is that the railroads did not break down as transportation machines. The breakdown was the result of using railroad cars and facilities as storage warehouses rather than as vehicles of transportation."

"As a result of these practices there were at one time more than 200,000 cars loaded with freight standing around waiting to be unloaded. These cars were out of service, covering up previous track room in the vicinity of the ports, the camps and the government projects."

"But that sort of thing won't happen again, because the billions spent by the railroads to restore and improve their plant and equipment, because of the co-operative work of the thirteen regional shippers advisory boards, and because transportation regulations have been set up between railroads and the interested departments of the government, which specify that railroad cars must not be loaded unless it is known that they can be unloaded at destination. It won't happen again because the carriers are organized among themselves as they never were before."

"Notwithstanding these facts, the railroads still are faced with serious problems."

"At the bottom there are financial problems which have been greatly aggravated by a public policy which has poured vast sums of money annually into the subsidizing and development of competing forms of transportation, without any regard to its effect upon railway transportation."

Problems Must Be Solved

"The people of this country must be made to realize that public welfare will be best served by a prompt solution of these problems, and that they will only be settled fairly and finally when all forms of transportation are treated alike in such matters as regulation, taxation and government aid."

If it is true that the railroads are indispensable to national defense, if it is true that national security requires that the railroads shall always be in readiness to meet any emergency, does it not follow that the public interest calls for transportation policy that will keep the railroads healthy and strong, rather than a transportation policy that tends to divert their traffic and impair their strength?"

"So great have been the inroads of competing forms of transportation, heavily subsidized by government, that in the last twenty years more than 22,000 miles of railroad in this country have been abandoned, and more than 20,000 railway stations have been closed. At present thirty-one per cent of the total railway mileage of the country is in bankruptcy."

"Then, also from the standpoint of national defense, what can be said of a public policy that pours hundreds of millions of dollars into the development of inland waterways by no means as essential as railroads—in time of war."

"The proposed St. Lawrence Seaway is such a project. The cost of this gigantic undertaking is estimated at a minimum of a half-billion dollars."

Railroaders Are Guests

Guests of the Exchange Club on "Railroad Night" included John E. Edwards, superintendent of the Cumberland division; Roy W. Eves, superintendent of the Baltimore and Annapolis division; Matthew M. New Drug Firm Granted Permit

Mayor and Police Commissioner Over-ruled in Rand Store Case

The new Rand drug store at the corner of Baltimore and Centre streets yesterday was granted a permit to operate without furnishing a $500 bond despite the opposition of Mayor Harry Irvine and Police Commissioner James Orr.

The mayor and Orr voted against the motion, declaring they preferred to wait another week to determine the results of an investigation concerning the type of signs the store plans to use. Irvine said he understood signs may be placed on the building formerly occupied by Holtzman's drug store, that would be eye-sores.

Furnished Lease

The store furnished a lease, as required by law, and the other three commissioners voted to grant the permit.

The storage of garbage trucks on Monroe street, was protested in a petition bearing signatures of twenty-one residents of the neighborhood. The petition, referred to the engineer and the fire and health departments, charges the building is a fire hazard.

Another complaint made in the petition is that two homes in the section have no sewer and that the lots consequently drain on the East Side school playground.

An application to transfer a pool room and soft drink license from Embassy Place to the Embassy Social Club, both at 31 North Mechanic street, was referred to the police for an investigation.

Miss Margaret V. Hannon, secretary to the city auditor, resigned effective April 15, and Miss Nellie G. Cozad was named to succeed her.

An approved order authorized an expenditure of $1,000 to purchase additional land for the airport from the VanMeter estate.

Water consumption for the week ending yesterday was 52,885,000 gallons. The daily average was 7,550,000 gallons as compared to 6,699,000 for the same period last year. Lake Gordon is three inches above the spillway and Lake Koehn seven feet below.

He was arrested early Sunday morning following a minor accident on North Mechanic street. The bumper of his machine hooked the bumper of a parked car.

While being taken to a sound-proof cell in the city jail Haines attacked Officer C. C. Roby, whose shirt was pulled off. The man was subdued but he had to be taken to Allegany hospital where twenty-four stitches were taken to close wounds in his head.

into "the hands of every union man in the country." He felt it would be a powerful stimulus towards creating "teamwork in industry and general morale, which are essential if our armed forces are to have the backing they deserve."

"It sets forth a program in which Labor can wholeheartedly take part," he commented. "It should do much to lift our people to a sustained level of self-giving patriotism." Green hoped it will also reach the "rank and file of our citizenry to strengthen their spirit for endurance and sacrifice."

Admiral Richard E. Byrd terms it a "handbook on national defense" and "a modern charter of Americanism." Since his recent return from the South Pole, the flying explorer has cooperated actively in preparations for the distribution of "You Can Defend America."

In a special statement issued yesterday, he pointed out that many of our people, especially our youth, have no clear conception of what America stands for or what are the basic ideals we must be prepared to defend. "This new book," he declared, "presents a philosophy of total defense for the nation. It is not only attractive and convincing, but so simple that anyone can understand and act on it. It should fire the hearts of all red-blooded Americans and stir their wills to action."

"You Can Defend America" is designed to make clear the need for national morale as a vital factor in total defense, and to show every citizen what he can do about it. At a time when everybody is talking about national unity, this booklet seeks to show how to achieve it and create a nation that "holds the secret of a new world."

Its theme is summarized in the striking center-page spread: "America needs guts as well as guns. National character is the core of national defense. Congress can't vote it. Dollars won't buy it. It is your job to build it."

The book calls frankly upon America to change where change is needed, to unite above barriers of class, race and creed, to fight against the dangers from within that already threaten our national life and make us vulnerable to attack from without.

The words and music of a new song for national defense with the same title as the book, are also included.

"You Can Defend America" is the springboard for a nation-wide morale-building effort which offers a plan for every patriot and puts the heart in national defense.

Becoming Button-Front Style

Marian Martin

PATTERN 9656

Your new little "cotton" must be very versatile these days! It must look equally well in and out-of-doors. . . it must be easy to launder . . . easy to wear . . . up-to-the-minute in style. This Marian Martin newcomer just fills the bill — it's Pattern 9656 and simple as can be to make. There's a buttoning all down the front that does wonders for your figure. The long panels at either side-front add to the general slim effect of the frock. Those curved side-bodice sections are masterpieces of figure flattery—notice how their softness is controlled by gathers above the waist and neat darts at the shoulders. Take your choice between short puffed and darted sleeves and brief, cool cap sleeves.

Ten Leading Cities in Health Protection

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—Ten cities have been selected by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and the American Public Health Association as having provided the most effective community-wide health protection for their residents during 1940.

They are:

Baltimore, Md.; Evanston, Ill.; Greenwich, Conn.; Hackensack, N. J.; Hartford, Conn.; Honolulu, Hawaii; Madison, Wis.; Memphis, Tenn.; Newton, Mass.; and Pasadena, Calif.

In announcing the winners of the 1940 city health conservation contest, the Grading committee of the two organizations said the awards did not mean that the ten cities were the most healthful.

Myers Discusses Training Child To Obey Parents

Make Only a Minimum of Rules, but Enforce These, Mother Is Told

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

We want the tot and runabout to obey us when we are with him away from home. He will do so, as a rule, if he has been correctly trained.

A worried mother writes of her boy twenty-one months old. "He is hard-headed, stubborn and it is almost impossible to make him mind. He has always had lots of attention everywhere we go. Demands it when we have company in our home. He is also an only child."

"When we go to a store, etc., he immediately goes through everything. If I try to correct him, people say 'Oh, leave him alone, he's just all boy.' One of these fine days they'll start saying 'Here comes that darn kid.' I wish his mother would make him mind."

Determined Child

"He is the type of child that will do or die. If I tell him to leave something alone he keeps on until I take it away from him."

"If we are out and I make him stop doing something he immediately throws a fit; oftentimes falling on the floor and screaming. Please tell me how I can stop this. I have tried making him wear a harness; but he pulled on it until he fell down and then people looked at me like I had lost my mind, putting one of those things on a little child. I will appreciate anything you can tell me. I enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope."

The Doctor's Answer

Better keep him home, if possible, until he has learned to obey you there. If you must take him to the store, then put the harness on him and make him think he is "playing horse."

At home, pick out a few things he must never do. Tell him so just once. Merely direct him or intercept him in relation to all other things for the present. Immediately after he does the forbidden act, spank him. If he cries or gets a tantrum, act as if you don't notice it. In relation to these few

SOME combinations of cards work out differently in actual play from the way you might think off-hand if you fail to study them carefully. Apparently you can play them either of two ways, and get the identical result. Further probing of their possibilities may show that one method is definitely the correct one and the other just as definitely incorrect.

As soon as West led his heart K and the dummy was faced, the declarer saw that he was certain to lose a trick in spades, plus almost surely a trump trick to probable bunched trumps with Mr. Doubler in the West. He therefore could not afford to lose a club trick. To make his contract, he would have to find East holding the club K. So he based his rapid calculations on that contingency. He ruffed the heart K, then confirmed the trump bunched news by laying down the A, following it with the K. He then took his

As he explained later, he had all cards ranging from the 9 to the Q, so it made no difference whether he led the J or the 9 from the dummy, as the 10 could be played under the J to leave the lead in dummy. That is what he did—led the J and played the 10. East ducked and then the 9 was led, which East covered with the K. South overtook with the A, then suddenly realized that after cashing the Q, he had to lead the 3 to the 8, setting him.

If he had led the 9 first, East could not have taken a club trick, regardless of whether he covered it or not. Just figure it out for yourself. It most certainly did make a difference, which card was led from dummy on the first club trick.

Another Punishment

When you are sure he will stay in one place, without being held or tied, try another punishment for misbehavior. Make him sit in a chair within your view for exactly twenty minutes, letting him know he would get a spanking or paddling if he left the chair without permission. In this way you can abandon spanking.

Show him lots of affection when he is good. Answer all his questions. Enjoy his creations, however crude. Read to him a great deal.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. What bathroom etiquette as between parents and children using the same bathroom do you advise?

A. Depends on the preference of the parents. Perhaps prudishness is worse than lack of conventional modesty.

Q. Why does the high school teacher more often resort to ridicule and sarcasm than does the fourth grade teacher?

A. The high school student is more easily injured by these barbarous weapons than the fourth grader is.

Flying Cadet Week Is Being Observed

NEW ARRIVAL

A Man May Have a Lot of Motives for Leaving Home, Motives That Are Hard To Understand if He's in Love

By JAMES O'HARA

Kathie was half ashamed by the time their old friends Howard and Grace arrived for a dinner that had been planned a week in advance. Contrary to Kathie's judgement, Jim had gone out and had not returned. "Don't fret your head about it, Kathie," Grace consoled her kindly. Grace and Howard were about the nicest young people they knew now.

It was gone—a hundred and twelve dollars!

—and Howard was a fine, steady husband who knew that work was the best solution to any family's problems. Not like Jim!

"But Jim knew that you were coming, Grace. You remember it was he who made the date in the first place, right after we won the bonus prize at the movie the night we all went together! Sometimes Jim gets in my hair—but I just can't stay angry!"

"You've got to give Jim plenty of rope for the first two years or so, young lady," Howard advised helpfully. "Don't forget that he's the salt of the earth, Kathie—I guess you know that well enough. But he isn't like the rest of us, exactly."

"Sure, Howard used to be like Jim before I married him, darling," Grace supplied. "Every man likes to take a flier once in a while."

"He's a born gambler, Grace. I knew it before I married, but I thought that he would settle down and have some sense when he had a wife to think about. But he's still like a child in that respect."

"We've known Jim a lot longer than you have, Kathie," Grace eased the situation. "He wouldn't knowingly do a solitary thing to harm you. Maybe he went down to the corner for some cigarettes and met somebody he knew. Jim likes to talk to people. Maybe he's just forgotten the time."

"I'll run down and see if I can round him up," Howard ventured. Kathie looked at the rapidly cooking meal in dismay. If Jim didn't return soon, it would be spoiled.

"The two women were silent for long moments after Howard had gone out in search of Jim, and each had her own thoughts. Kathie flashed a possible reason occurred to her for Jim's strange action in going out and staying away."

"Grace, do you suppose—she got out—stumbling—as conviction strengthened in her mind. "When Jim came in from job hunting this afternoon I told him something that maybe I should have saved for a while. We were going to have a little Jim!"

"Who, darling! How marvelous for you, Jim just adores children—and I don't blame him for feeling like that out and exulting a bit." But he didn't say anything, Grace. That's what worries me so. He just told me by the arms and gave me a queer look and said it was grand news. But then he went out."

Kathie acted on the impulse of a sudden suspicion. She went into her bedroom and rifled through the clean shirts in Jim's bureau drawer, where they kept that dwindling remainder of the money they had saved before Jim's lamour job gave out. It was gone—a hundred and twelve dollars.

"I knew it, Grace. I should have known it from the beginning, because Jim's acted like this before when he felt low. He takes every cent he can find and just gambles it all away. I think it makes him feel better. But all our tiny bit of money gone and Jim not even working now!"

Universities Give Special Courses To Help Defense

Many Aeronautical Engineers Being Provided

BALTIMORE, April 14 (AP)—Sponsors have expressed pleasure with results in a educational experiment at two Maryland universities designed to supply more aeronautical engineers and specialists to meet expanding national defense needs.

The Glenn L. Martin Company, co-sponsor with the National Defense Council, said courses instituted at the University of Maryland and Johns Hopkins University were "progressing well."

At Johns Hopkins, qualified engineers receive intensive instruction in highly specialized subjects, such as electricity as applied to aircraft, plastics and fluid mechanics. Others are trained in factory management and production technique.

Give Advance Courses

Maryland University molds aeronautical engineers from other classes of engineers and gives advanced courses to practicing aeronautical engineers. Tool design and aircraft inspection are other studies.

The courses are under the direction of the two deans of engineering, Prof. S. S. Steinberg at Maryland and Dr. W. B. Kouvenhove at Hopkins. National defense funds pay for the courses, many of which are taught by Martin employees.

The need for trained men is growing with the ever-increasing demands for planes. One course at the University of Maryland gives basic training in aircraft drafting to graduates of Technical High School as well as engineers. Many of the men taking advanced courses at both schools are Martin employees.

Tool Engineering Courses

Tool engineering courses are aimed to fill the need for tool design specialists to carry on quantity production.

Some 700 skilled inspectors, who test every piece of material from raw product to finished airplane, are already at work in the Middle River plant. There is a call for 800 more and many of them, Martin officials said, would come from these courses. At Hopkins, advanced engineers study plastics, not only to famiarize themselves with latest types, but in an attempt to find substitutes for aluminum alloys.

Mail Subsidies For New Airline To Be Opposed

Major Battle in Prospect in the Senate This Week

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—A major Senate battle is in prospect this week on the question of mail subsidies for a second trans-Atlantic air line.

This issue is presented in the $1,152,372,632 treasury-post office supply bill to be brought up for debate on Tuesday. By a 13 to 12 vote, the Senate Appropriations committee included in the measure an $800,000 fund to pay American Export Airlines, Inc., for carrying mail on transatlantic flights. The company proposes, if given a mail contract, to make one trip a week.

Later in the week, the Senate may receive from its commerce committee legislation authorizing the administration to purchase thirty-nine Danish ships taken into protective custody two weeks ago. Little opposition has appeared to this legislation requested by President Roosevelt, but the measure may become a vehicle for general Senate debate on administration foreign policy.

To Debate Convoys Question

The Senate Foreign Relations committee is scheduled Wednesday to consider a proposal by Senator Tobey (R-NH) to put Congress on record against the use of American naval units to convoy shipments of war goods.

Leading the fight against mail subsidies for American Export Airlines was Chairman Bailey (D-NC) of the Senate Commerce committee. He prepared a minority report attacking the appropriations committee's action on the ground that it would permit a shipping company, American Export Lines, Inc., to enter airmail competition in violation of a Congressional policy.

American Export Airlines is a subsidiary of American Export Lines, a shipping concern.

Tydings Opposed

Another opponent, Senator Tydings (D-Md) said the shipping line was owned largely by Lehman Brothers, New York bankers, and that it held a "monopoly" on surface transportation to Europe.

Opponents have charged that it would cost the government more than $21,000 weekly in mail payments on a new trip to be inaugurated by American Export, as compared with approximately $8,000 for a fourth authorized trip for Pan-American Airways.

Those on the other side asserted, however, that Pan-American now has a virtual monopoly on transoceanic airlines from the United States.

Honeymoon Gold

by PEGGY DERN

SYNOPSIS

TOM AND BETSY FORMAN inherit Halcyon Island from invalid J. Edgar Markham, who was found shot to death. Markham had established the spot as a "honeymoon" island, but his idea had been opposed bitterly by crooked business associates who wanted to make it a base for smuggling aliens into the United States.

NATALIE SCHUYLER, moneyed society girl, and BROOKS MARCHBANKS, possessor of high social position, but not much money, are married. Starting on their honeymoon, they find a wrecked car in which are an injured boy and girl. Discovering that they are without funds, Natalie sees to it that the newly-married couple.

CORALIE AND JOHN SIMPSON, are provided for. Coralie says that they were bound for Halcyon Island to spend their honeymoon.

In a "truth" session, Brooks admits that he has married Natalie for money.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

WHEN BROOKS awoke and called his wife's room to find if she was ready for breakfast, there was no answer. He dressed and knocked lightly at her door. There was no answering sound from within, so he decided that it was much too early for her to be awake—it wasn't quite ten, his watch told him—and he went on down to the dining room in search of breakfast.

He was halfway through the meal when he saw her come in. Slim and radiantly lovely in her honey-beige tweeds, her fur coat carelessly over her arm, her eyes bright and eager. She looked for him in the dining room, saw him, and came swiftly toward him. Brooks, rising to greet her, was a little dazzled by her radiance.

The dining room, save for themselves, was deserted. A waiter hurried to take her order and vanished. Natalie leaned on the table toward Brooks, very gay and animated and lovely.

"I've been to the hospital," she told him. "Johnny had a reasonably comfortable night and his chances are a little better. Coralie is coming along nicely, too. She was awfully pleased with the trousseau I took her."

Brooks grinned, a curious look in his eyes.

"I can readily imagine—the loot of fifty-seventh street and Madison avenue's ritziest shops," he said lightly.

She hesitated for a moment. Obviously there was something she wanted to say and wasn't quite sure just how to say it. Brooks waited, a little chill settling suddenly about his heart.

"Brooks—about last night—" she said suddenly. Hot color burned her face and she could not quite meet his eyes.

"Yes—about last night. You, of course, want a divorce."

She looked up at him swiftly. "Is that what you want, Brooks?" she asked.

"But see here, Natalie, I want whatever you want. You must know that. Your happiness, your comfort, your well-being—"

"Then—we won't be having a divorce," said Natalie quietly. "At least, not just yet. It seems to me that—even though we don't love each other—we ought to be able to salvage something out of being together. We are good friends, good comrades. We enjoy being together—or am I taking too much for granted?"

"Don't be an idiot. You know you've always been my favorite girl friend," said Brooks almost harshly.

"It's just that, being moderns, we don't believe in love," said Natalie with a lightness whose effort was so well done that he completely missed it. "But we can have a lot of fun being married. If we are careful not to ask too much—"

Brooks grinned unthinkingly. "That's a thought," he agreed politely.

"I thought that maybe if for just a little while we could get away from being young Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Marchbanks'—who've always had the world on a string and a mortgage on the moon, if we could get away from all the fuss and feathers and just be two young people on a honeymoon—well, we might find out a lot of things about each other that would make for something faintly approaching happiness."

Natalie was having trouble putting her thoughts into words, the chief trouble being that she must be so desperately careful not to let him see that she was pleading for a chance to win his love—that love he didn't believe existed.

Suddenly she looked up at Brooks and asked unexpectedly, "Do you look forward with much excitement to honeymooning in the Caribbean, the way we planned it?"

"My dear, as I've said before, I want whatever you want—" "Oh, for heaven's sake!"—the thin thread of Natalie's self-control snapped suddenly—"stop sounding so much like a hired husband, and give me a straight and sincere answer."

Brooks colored with anger and resentment. But after a moment he said, his tone cold, controlled, though the veins in his throat and the ridge of muscle along his jaw indicated that her taunt had struck home. "Then, my dear, since it's the unvarnished truth you want—the honeymoon we've planned will bore me!"

She took that as she would have taken a physical blow for which she had asked and which she had expected; on the chin, without flinching, drawing a little sharp breath, her hands clenched hard at her sides. Then she nodded, a trifle pale beneath her expertly applied makeup, and said quietly, "That's what I wanted to know. I feel the same way about it. So—suppose we trade honeymoons with Johnny and Coralie?"

"What on earth are you talking about?" Brooks demanded, bewildered and still angry.

"I mean—let's leave our car and my fancy clothes here for Coralie and Johnny," she explained eagerly, breathless and radiant again beneath the excitement of this plan that had grown in her mind during the empty, sleepless hours of the night. "Let's take their car and their baggage and go to Halcyon Island for a month. When they get well, they can have our tickets and our hotel reservations—"

"You mean you want to masquerade as Coralie, the pride of the overall factory? Marie Antoinette and the milkmaids, eh?"

Natalie lifted her chin proudly. "That's a nasty crack," she told him hotly. "But it is what I want to do and I think it would be fun! We'd get clear away from newspapers, and we could sort of—well, have a chance to get acquainted. The sort of life we've both lived, and the way we've known each other, has been—oh, all cluttered up with non-essentials. And you don't know, you might even like me—"

She set her teeth hard, for she had said more along that line than she had meant to say.

Brooks studied her for a long moment and then he nodded. "I have to admit it sounds a bit screwy, but if you think it would be fun—"

"It mustn't be like that, Brooks," Natalie cut in unexpectedly, her voice shaken a little, a look in her eyes that he had never seen before—a look that if he had not known her so well he might have called a pleading look. "Not just because I think it would be fun—but because you think so, too."

She drew a long, hard breath. Her hand closed on the table until it was a small, hard fist, and she said, her voice still shaken, "Don't you see, Brooks? It's got to be—not you or me, but US! It's what WE think, not what you think, or I. If we don't share things, then how can we ever find any happiness together?"

Brooks put out his hand and laid it over that small, closed fist. "Sorry, darling," he said quietly. "Of course you're right. And I DO think it would be fun—grand fun. A real lark. But what about Johnny and Coralie? Have you told them?"

"Oh, no—I wouldn't until I asked you," said Natalie. "I thought maybe you'd go over to the hospital with me. We'll have to make our plans with Coralie. Johnny still is unconscious and the doctor says it will be several days before he can have visitors."

Brooks nodded and signaled to the waiter for the check. Outside in the crisp golden sunlight they drove to the hospital, the handsome imported roadster creating considerable attention as they went.

Patients Not Alone in Following Fads; Doctors Guilty Too, One of Them Admits

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● We all know that patients are likely to have fads. They go from one doctor to another and from one form of treatment to another, always seeking the sudden magic result, but we do not always realize that doctors are also faddy.

Some people seem to think of them as austere and impossibly learned human beings who arrive at a conclusion after a long process of logic based upon science and are always right, but they can be just as faddy as the patients. Medical friends of mine, who believed, once upon a time, in having the appendix out for any ill, are now giving vitamins by the carload and before long I predict that they will be using small doses of selenium.

When a patient gets cured by a method that is not approved of by the text books of medicine the doctors all say it was due to suggestion. But the cures they accomplish themselves are never due to suggestion; oh no, they are the real thing. A patient has his back rubbed by a back-rubber and gets cured and the doctor says the cure is due to suggestion, but if the doctor should wash out the patient's stomach and the patient gets cured there is no suggestion about that. Or if he gives him vitamin B-7 and he gets well, that is not due to suggestion—oh no, that is the real thing.

Real Cures Remain

What has happened to the fads of other days? What has happened to Copeism. "Every day in every way I am getting better and better?" You used to say that into the mirror. Remember? Are you still doing it? If it was good then why isn't it good now? If it cured you then why won't it still cure you?

The real thing doesn't change. If you had malaria ten years ago, you would still get quinine for it and it would still cure you. There is just as much quinine being taken for malaria now as there was ten years ago. Why isn't there just as much Copeism being practiced now as then?

Of course, it is pretty hard to answer a question like that, but there is no question that fads come and go. Unless there is an organization to keep a fad alive it dies out. Copeism had a strong organization for a while but it lost interest.

It is of course a little cruel of me to remind those of you who were once ardent Copeists that you have forgotten all about it. As a matter of fact it was a form of therapy that is recognized by the medical profession and a very sensible one. It probably did a lot of good. It would do a lot of people good now if they could convince themselves that every day in every day in every way they were getting better and better. There are many people who need just the amount of self-assurance that cure gave them.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

L.D.N.—"I would like to know if carbonated beverages, such as pop, whistle and phosphates, are injurious to the health. I drink three or four of these bottled drinks a day."

Answer—No harm if you're healthy and if they don't make you too fat. Carbonation is good for a drink especially in hot weather; it quenches thirst faster.

British Hope To Sell Clothing in U. S.

LONDON, April 14 (AP)—The British garment industry has pooled its resources in an effort to reach new markets in the United States and Canada for British sportswear, woollens and dress fashions to help pay for United States war supplies.

A delegation left over the weekend for New York to open an exhibition of two thousand models next month. They plan later exhibits at Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles and other cities.

A spokesman said the move was not intended to compete with United States manufacturers, who are "supreme in their field," but to offer typically British fashions as collateral for the war financing effort.

Cloud Indexers

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP)—The United States weather bureau, which uses Alaska findings to aid in charting weather to come to the States, has installed a huge searchlight in order to find out how high clouds are over Ketchikan at night.

You know how weak you feel after a cold. Colds play havoc in weakening the body. The story is well told in the blood picture. It is important to build back body strength right away to carry the load of work, worries, and loss of sleep. A weakened body may be more susceptible to relapse or long drawn out recovery.

Last Rites Held For Fire Victim At Meyersdale

Betty Fike Fatally Burned as Clothes Ignite from Trash Blaze

MEYERSDALE, Pa., April 14—Funeral services for Betty Fike, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fike, who died Saturday morning at Hazel McGilvery hospital, where she died after having been seriously burned when her clothes ignited from a fire that had been started to consume rubbish at the family home on Keystone street, were conducted at the Church of the Brethren this afternoon by the Rev. DeWitt L. Miller.

Neighbors rushed to the assistance of the child, but their efforts were of no avail to extinguish the blaze before fatal burns were inflicted.

On Palm Sunday at the morning services Betty had led the procession down the aisle to altar in the preliminary services that were conducted by the children of the congregation.

Surviving, besides her parents, are a sister, Mrs. John Quinn, and a brother, Robert Fike, Meyersdale. Interment was in Union cemetery.

Jonathan Beal Dies

Jonathan Beal, 91, a former resident of Meyersdale, died last night at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lowery, 122 South Fourth street, Connelville.

Until his retirement some years ago, Mr. Beal was engaged in lumbering and planing mill work. He went to Connelville to reside with his daughter about eight months ago.

Surviving are eight children, Mrs. Sadie Williams, McKeesport; Mrs. John Holzshu, Pittsburg; Roy Beal, New Castle; Edwood Beal, San Diego, Calif.; Mrs. Edith Beachly, McKeesport; Harry Beal, Barboursport; and two sisters, Mrs. Charles Porter, Eckhart, Md., and Mrs. Anna Brice, Connelville.

Derby Candidates Lose at Havre De Grace

Madigama Wins Feature Race From Jay Jay

Big Stakes and Little Beans Are Beaten in Separate Contests

By MASON BRUNSON

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 14 (AP)—Kentucky Derby candidates took a fearful kicking around as Havre de Grace's spring race meeting began today, but Madigama, a three-year-old gelding eligible for Pimlico's rich Preakness Stakes came through with a thrilling victory in the featured Harford Handicap.

Madigama, owned by the Brandys, was stable and ridden by the cagey Nick Wall, outlasted Howard Bruce's "Old Man," Jay Jay, who won the race way back in 1936, in a head-to-head stretch battle to win the $5,000-added feature in a photo-finish and take down the victor's purse of $4,425.

E. K. Bryson's Sprinter, Clyde Tolson, almost equally favored with Madigama by the opening day crowd of 15,000, was third in the field of seven and Arnold Hangers' Big Stakes, a Kentucky Derby Eligible, wound up next to last.

Madigama, owned in front and never headed, barely lasted under Jay Jay's courageous challenge in the home stretch and marked up a time of 1:11 1/5 for the six furlongs. The gelded son of Gino and Sun Dancer returned $670 for $2 win tickets.

Hard-luck horse of the day was Mrs. Louise Palladino's Little Beans, a highly-regarded Derby eligible who was beaten by Guy Bedwell's Son Altesse in the mile and a sixteenth Parkton Handicap.

Little Beans got into almost every kind of trouble that could befall a horse and in addition was given a mediocre ride by Sterling Young, the same jockey that rode Big Stakes.

The three-year-old colt owned by Mrs. Louise Palladino was bumped and blocked at the start, was shut off when Young tried to take him out of the inside, and had to be pulled up when in a pocket coming out of the backstretch.

Nevertheless, the gallant colt gave everything he had in the home stretch and showed speed and stamina in finishing two and a half lengths behind Son Altesse. At that, he had a five-length margin over the third horse, R. J. Randolph's Interface.

The City Softball League will operate with six teams this season, Cliff Fearer, president, announced last night following a meeting at the Y.M.C.A.

The circuit will be composed of Lacy's Delicats, North End Social and Athletic Club, West Side Merchants, Post's Service Station, Montgomery and Ward and Golden Bakers.

Player's contracts were distributed at the meeting last night and an additional will open May 5, Fearer said each club was attempting to secure a home field and that four clubs already have made arrangements for diamonds for their home games.

The six umpires selected are Lawrence Trozzo, James Stevens, Robert Mock, John Ansellata, Phil Holshay and Frank Zradaka.

Another meeting will be held Friday night of this week at the Central Y.M.C.A. at 8 o'clock at which time each club must post a $10 forfeit fee. The 1941 schedule will also be approved at the meeting.

Fitz Is Dangerous Around Derby Time

NEW YORK, April 14.—The plump, but dangerous shadow of Sunny James Fitzsimmons fell across the downs at Louisville last week-end. Mr. Fitz was minding his own business in New York at the time it happened, but he throws a long shadow, does Fitz.

When word reached the bookmakers around the country that Mr. Fitz's big bay colt, King Cole, had won a smart race at Jamaica, they scrambled wildly for their pencils and rewrote the odds on the new Kentucky favorite for the run for the roses on May 3, and the latest roll call reads as follows:

Disposé—4-1.
Whirlaway—4-1.
King Cole—4-1.
Curious Coin—6-1.
Porter's Cap—6-1.
Our Boots—6-1.
Bold Irishman—8-1.
Starry Boy—20-1.
Ocean Blue—20-1.
Little Beans—20-1.
Blue Pair—20-1.
Omission—40-1.

The Doubtful Starters

Doubtful starters among the good horses are: Attention, New World, Harvard Square, Magnificent, Signator, and Good Turn. That pretty well covers the field. There are some fifty other horses on the entry list, but barring miracles, you can count them out. The winner of the sixtieth Kentucky Derby should come from the star-sprinkled list we gave above.

And now, what about this Fitzsimmons fellow? He gives the lie to Julia Caesar's popular theory that John and Caesar's men alone are dangerous.

"Let me have men about that are fat—sleek-headed men, and such as sleep at night," said Mr. Caesar. Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons is a fat, sleek-headed man, and sleeps very well at night, but Caesar wouldn't have wanted him around. Any horseman or bookmaker in the country can tell you that Mr. Fitz is a dangerous man, especially at Derby time.

Right now the stout trainer is on the track of one of racing's most cherished records—the record of Derby Dick Thompson and Colonel Edward Riley Bradley, who, as trainer and owner, saddled four Derby winners between them.

Mr. Fitz, agent for the rich and effete East, has been creeping up on this mark with great steadiness, and now he stands ready to smash the hard-bitten team of Thompson and Bradley on its own ground.

In 1930, Fitz trained gallant Fox to victory. In 1935 he had Omaha, and two years ago he roped and tied the field with Johnstown. Those three horses were all from the barn of William Woodward, while King Cole is an Oaden Phillips horse—but the same sure hand developed them all.

King Cole Is No Johnstown

Before the running of the Pimlico at Jamaica last week, King Cole was 10 to 1 in the future books. Now he is 4 to 1, and if he whips Disposé in the Wood Memorial next week, as many a clocker believes he will, the rugged, fleet-footed bay will move on to Louisville as the foremost choice for the Derby.

That's an old Fitzsimmons cution. He doesn't always win at Churchill Downs, but he usually comes along with the big horse, comes along with the big horse.

To be sure, King Cole's victory last week was at six furlongs, while Disposé, Porter's Cap and Whirlaway have proved they can go farther than that. The Wood Memorial, at a mile, and a sixteenth should begin to tell the story.

"I think this horse can run a distance," says Mr. Fitz. "No reason why he shouldn't. He's built for it and bred for it, and he showed signs of stopping last Saturday."

He's a nice, easy-handling horse. He trained in a month. He's a stable pet for behavior and he likes to run. I don't see anything wrong with him. We're certain going to make trouble in the derby."

To your correspondent's mind, which is not exactly the best mind in racing, King Cole is no Johnstown. He lacks the tremendous, devouring speed of Mr. Fitz's last great horse. But you don't have to be a Johnstown to win the Derby. One length is as good as eight, if you come home on top.

It's getting to be a habit with the man who trains him.

Louis-Buddy Baer Fight Is Tentatively Set for May 23

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Promoter Mike Jacobs announced today he had tentatively scheduled a Joe Louis-Buddy Baer heavyweight championship fight here May 23.

Jacobs conferred with the District of Columbia Boxing Commission on plans for the bout and later opened negotiations for renting Griffith Stadium for the title encounter.

Jacobs said he planned to match Louis with Billy Conn in a title fight in June or July, provided, of course, that Baer bows before the champion. Challenger Lou Nova's chance against Louis probably will be in September, the promoter added.

Major League Baseball Races Open Today

Big Crowds Are Expected To See Teams in Action

Fair Weather Is Promised as All Clubs Swing into Action Today

NEW YORK, April 14 (AP)—Major League baseball opens the 1941 season tomorrow with its fingers crossed.

The shadow of war, with the implication of such Allied affairs as the draft and the "fresh" money circulating from the boom in defense industries, has Major League managers lifting the lid on the campaign with emotions running all the way from weary worry to gleeful optimism.

President Roosevelt actually touched off the fireworks today when he tossed his high, hard one to start the New York Yankees and Washington Senators off on the annual one-game "preview" in the national capital.

Expect 227,000 Fans

Tomorrow all sixteen teams swing into action, before an expected total of about 227,000 fans, and the general impression is they'll start the kind of a season in which just about anything can happen—and probably will.

In these, the Cincinnati Reds, are favored to come up with their third straight National League flag, while the rebuilt "stream-lined" Yankees and the Cleveland Indians figure to fight it out for the Junior circuit championship.

The threat of the army draft, which already has clipped Pitcher No. 1, Hugh Mulcahy, from the ranks of the lowly Phillies, hangs over every club. At that moment, the chief immediate blow would be to the defending American League Champion Detroit Tigers if their ace pitcher, big Hank Greenberg, is summoned.

In Cleveland, hopes are high. Last year, the row between the players and owner Voss was blamed for the Tribe's defeat in the pennant chase.

Yankees Rebuilt Team
The Yankees are going to have more than a little bit to say after four straight pennants and world championships, they said to third last year, and the rebuilding was on over for winter.

The Boston Red Sox still need pitching, and their chances in the current race appear to lie in whether or not they're going to find any "rain" among the throwers they've brought from their training camp. Jimmy Dykes and his Chicago White Sox again look like the trouble makers for the first division hopefuls.

Browns Look Good
Around St. Louis, the folks are high over the chances of the Browns, the only Major League club which never has won a pennant.

The Senators and Philadelphia Athletics, as usual, resemble horses carrying too much weight.

Cincinnati is the team to beat in the Senior circuit. Although Billy Myers, short-fielder for the 1939 and '40 pennant-winning outfits, have been traded, the Reds' bosses feel they have more than an ample replacement in Eddie Joost.

Over in Brooklyn, the folks say this is the "next year" they've been waiting for since 1920. The "Is" are whether Pee Wee Reese will be at short for the full campaign, whether Ducky Medwick has fully recovered from the effects of last year's beaning, whether Pete Reiser, who has all the earmarks of a coming star, can take over center field like a veteran, and whether the pitching staff can hold together.

Largely because of their snappy finish in the 1940 race, the St. Louis Cardinals are receiving considerable support. Pittsburgh, under fiery Frankie Frisch for the second year, should be better. The Cubs hope Lou Novikoff, up from the Pacific Coast League, can work wonders. As for New York and Boston, it looks like a fight strictly for sixth place. The Phillies, as usual, figure to come in at the end, which is right here.

No. 1 Hydrogens Win In Chemists' League

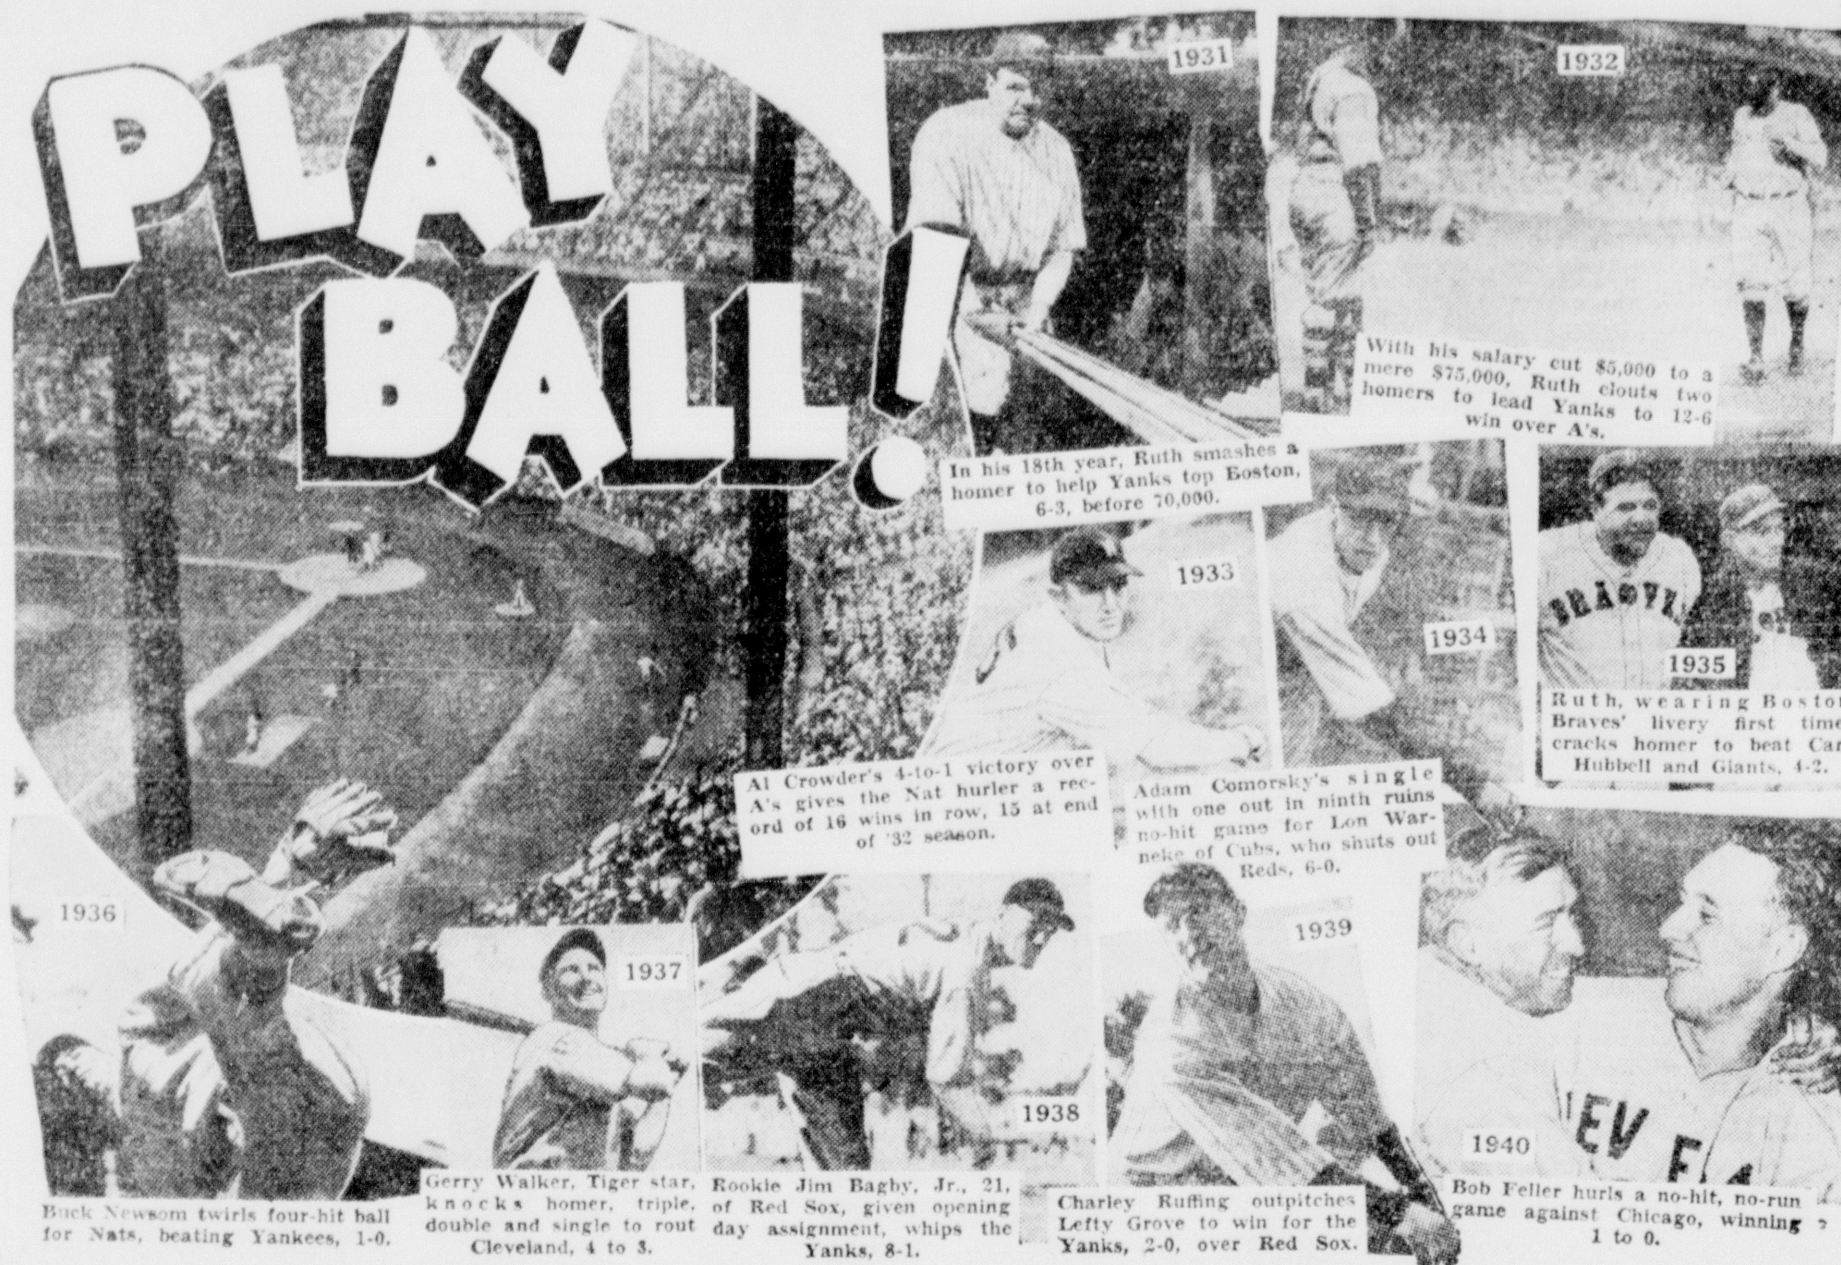

The Hydrogens increased their Celanese Chemists' League lead at Greentown by winning three games from the Oxygens while the Beaker Busters were scoring twice over the Forty-Niners to move into second place. Frank Baran of the Beaker Busters had high set of 451. The scores:

1936 Buck Newsom twirls four-hit ball for Nats, beating Yankees, 1-0.

1937 Gerry Walker, Tiger star, Rookie Jim Bagby, Jr., 21, knocks homer, triple, of Red Sox, given opening double and single to rout day assignment, whips the Yankees, 8-1.

1938 Charley Ruffing outpitches Lefty Grove to win for the Yankees, 2-0, over Red Sox.

1939 Bob Feller hurls a no-hit, no-run game against Chicago, winning 2-1 to 0.

1940 Adam Comorosky's single with one out in ninth runs no-hit game for Lou Rubeck of Cubs, who shuts out the Reds, 6-0.

1931 In his 18th year, Ruth smashes a homer to help Yanks top Boston, 6-3, before 70,000.

1932 Al Crowder's 4-to-1 victory over A's gives the Nat hurler a record of 16 wins in row, 15 at end of '32 season.

1933 Ruth, wearing Boston Braves' lively first time, cracks homer to beat Carl Hubbell and Giants, 4-2.

NEW YORK, April 14 (AP)—Batter up!

'Tis the cry of the major league umpires as another pennant season gets underway in the big leagues.

Thunder of cannon, dive bombers and machine gun fire "over there" will give way to the roar of the baseball crowd over here as millions prepare to welcome another baseball season, the one hundred and second, according to the Double-day adher-ents.

The 1941 campaign should be an especially interesting one, for the race in each league is expected to be much clearer than in the past.

In the National League, Brooklyn, Cincinnati and St. Louis are picked to fight it out. In the American, the biggest money is on Cleveland, Detroit and New York.

Night Baseball Boom

Attendance marks in the south-land and on the Pacific coast during the spring training season, bigger than in the past, indicate big-crowds for the regular season.

Baseball is America's national game. Baseball appeals to all ages, both sexes. Employment is up. More money is available to be spent.

In St. Louis, always a poor city for baseball fans, a new deal is expected, for both clubs are much better fitted for the coming races than in many years. The Cards are pennant contenders, the Browns vastly improved over last year.

Novikoff Colorful

Baseball's biggest gate attraction, young Bobby Feller of the Cleveland Indians, should enjoy a banner season again. Barring Babe Ruth, no player in the modern history of the game can pack in the fans as does Master Robert.

The rookie crop is a colorful, promising group. The Yankee infield twins, Phil Rizuto and Gerald Priddy, will draw many fans, anxious to see what the "shoutin' about" And the Cubs' colorful addition, Lou Novikoff, the "Mad Russian" should help the turnstiles click in the national loop.

Hank Greenberg, always a big attraction, and his draft status, has made many persons baseball-conscious.

Opening day, in Washington, yesterday and today in the other cities, should attract some 200,000 fans.

What thrills in these opening held this year in the past, as illustrated above, there have been many topped by the 1940 sensation, Bob Feller's no-hit game against the Chicago White Sox.

Rocking Chair Loop To Have Two Divisions

Representatives of teams in the Rocking Chair Softball League met last night at the Elks home and decided to split the loop into two divisions.

In one group composed of the Knights of Columbus, Junior Association of Commerce, Knights of Pythias, Montgomery Ward, and B. & O. Bolt and Forge shop, the age limit will be from 21 to 30.

The other division will be of teams which have players in the 30 years up range. Only three teams are represented in this section. The Knights of Pythias, Elks and the Police Department.

League officials are hoping to contact the Eagles, Moose, Potomac Edison and other organizations wishing to put teams in either age division.

It was decided to have a split season the same as last year. Games will be played on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Opening games will be played sometime in May and the season will end the week before the Fairgo race season.

Marius Russo Holds Senators To Three Hits

President Roosevelt and 32,000 Sweltering Fans See Game

By JUDSON BAILEY
WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—New York's Yankees, opening the 1941 Major League campaign before President Roosevelt and 32,000 sweltering, short-sleeved fans, smothered the Washington Senators 3 to 0 today on the three-hitting of Marius Russo, their sophomore southpaw star.

Except for the score it was one of the most perfect, colorful curtain-raising that Washington folks could remember.

Weather Is Perfect
The sun shone brightly, sending the temperature above 85. The president arrived fifteen minutes before game time was greeted by "Hail to the Chief" from the army band and the cheers of the crowd. Then Vice President Wallace raised the American flag on the center field pole and the president threw out a new ball for his ninth pitch over a period dating back to 1917, when as secretary of the navy he subbed for President Wilson.

An unknown rookie pitcher, Arnold Anderson of the Washington club, got the ball after players had scrambled in front of the White House box to catch it.

Red Ruffe, second man up for New York, slammed Emil (Dutch) Sauer's knuckle ball for a single into rightfield to open things. He was forced by Tom Henrich, but the latter got all the way to second as Shortstop Cecil Travis threw and to first trying for a double play.

DiMaggio Hits Triple
Then Joe DiMaggio drove a tremendous triple into the right-center field corner to score the runner.

In the fifth and sixth the Yankees broke loose again. In the fifth Bill Dickey doubled sharply to left center, and Pitcher Russo blasted a two-bagger that bounced against the wall in center field, 425 feet away, and scored Dickey.

The run in the sixth came on successive singles by Henrich and DiMaggio and a long fly to right by Charley Keller.

Alex Kampouris

Slugging of Alex Kampouris with Newark last year has given the home-run king of the eBars a chance with the Brooklyn Dodgers this year.

Kampouris, a former National leaguer, rapped out thirty-six home runs to break the former mark of thirty-two.

A second baseman, the 1941 rookie originally was brought up to the majors in 1934 by Larry MacPhail, then of the Reds. He was playing Sacramento then.

Illinois Suspends Barlund and Manager After Investigation

CHICAGO, April 14 (AP)—Heavyweight Gunnar Barlund and his manager, Paul Damski, were suspended today for one year by the Illinois Athletic Commission as the result of an investigation into the big Finn's bout with Billy Conn here April 4.

In addition to revoking their licenses, the commission ordered Barlund's share of the purse returned to the state treasury. Barlund's share amounted to $3,899.50, but he already had drawn an advance of $944, for training expenses. Thus the remainder, $2,955.50, reverts to the state.

The commission ordered the hearing of the night of the fight after Damski had refused to let Barlund, bleeding from a cut in his right eye, lid, answer the bell for the eighth round. Damski admitted before the commission today that he was responsible for having the fight stopped, contending that another blow on the cut might permanently have impaired the fighter's eyesight.

LaVale and City A. C. Will Play Thursday

Practice sessions are scheduled for today and Wednesday at 5:30 o'clock for the LaVale A. A. softball team of the Allegany County League, while Thursday at 5:30 LaVale will meet the City A. C. club in a practice game at LaVale.

Square Deal Is Needed In Transportation Field, B&O Official Declares

Government Must Realize Strong Railroad System Vital to Nation, C. V. Thomas Tells Exchange

The great need in this country today is a national transportation policy which recognizes that a strong and vigorous system of railroads is essential to our national well-being. C. Vernon Thomas, of Baltimore, special representative of the Public Relations department, Baltimore and Ohio railroad, told his audience yesterday at the "Railroad Night" dinner of the Cumberland Exchange club in the Golden Gate Tea Room, South Centre street.

We need a policy that places no handicaps upon the railroads by giving preferential treatment to their competitors. We need a policy that treats all forms of transportation with fairness and impartiality. In short, we need a square deal in transportation," declared Thomas.

Speaks on Defense
The topic of Thomas' talk was "Railroads and National Defense." and the speaker of the evening was introduced by Matthew W. Grove, traveling passenger agent of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, after the latter was introduced by George Tedrick, secretary of the Exchange club.

In a time of national emergency, we would expect our railroads to handle not only their peace-time traffic, but in addition large quantities of lumber for shipyards and gunnery, iron, steel and machinery for construction of ships, materials for munitions plants and airplanes, factories, foodstuffs and equipment for our armed forces and scores of other essential things that no other form of transportation would be capable of handling," declared Thomas.

Today, such a national emergency exists and the question being asked is "What of the railroads in the defense program, how are they fixed to handle the load?"

A like question was asked of the railroads nearly two years ago when the war clouds first appeared over Europe.

"At that time our railroads examined their capacity and their ability to meet the demands of national defense. They reported to the secretary of the treasury that the railroads had ample line-haul capacity between terminals; that the railroads had ample terminal capacity; provided always that freight would be unloaded promptly on arrival; that with this terminal capacity, and with equipment as of May, 1939, the railroads could handle twenty-five per cent more traffic than was moving at that time, and by an extensive equipment repair program, they could handle forty-five per cent more business than was moving then."

The railroads were soon called on to make good their estimates. With the outbreak of the war in Europe on September 3, 1939, and the normal fall increase in business, freight traffic on American railroads went up faster in a shorter period than it had ever done before.

In October, 1939, although the program of equipment repair was far from complete, the railroads handled not twenty-five per cent more business than they had.

Three Eckhart Anglers Go Trout Fishing but Return with a Deer

Three Eckhart anglers went fishing for trout yesterday in Garrett county but instead of returning with speckled beauties they came to Cumberland yesterday with a deer in their possession.

Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, told the story last evening of a three trout fisherman starting out before daybreak for an expedition to the trout streams of Garrett county but on the way the car in which they were riding struck a doe and killed it. The doe was following close on the heels of three other deer that crossed the highway when it ran right into the path of the oncoming machine.

Lawrence Briner, driver of the machine, brought the doe to Cumberland where it was dressed and the venison turned over to the Associated charities for distribution. Minke said that the meat was in very good condition.

Occupational Deferments To Be Discussed

Selective Service Officials of Baltimore Will Be Here April 23

Two high-ranking officers of the State Selective Service headquarters in Baltimore will confer with members of Local Draft Boards No. 1, 2 and 3, Wednesday, April 23. Alvin E. Yaste, chief clerk of Board No. 1, accompanied them.

Primary purpose of the conference will be to discuss "occupational deferments" and procedure to follow in such cases, Yaste said.

Comdr. H. C. Bryant, assistant director of State Selective Service, will be accompanied by Maj. Paul K. Klaessius, advisor to the state board on occupational deferments.

Albert A. Doub, Sr., Charles Z. Heskett and Wilbur V. Wilson, appeal agents assigned to local boards, will also attend the conference.

Officials of the Celanese plant, B&O, railroad, Cumberland Steel Company, Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, and officials of other local industrial plants will be interviewed during the day.

Various problems and conditions presented by draftees employed in the local plants who will be called for service will be discussed.

An interview over radio station WTBO will be given by the two officials at 6:45 p. m. that day.

Angler Gets 16 Trout, 14 Are Undersized, Pays Fine of $50

Charged with violating the state fishing law which limits the size of legal trout to seven inches and the creel to ten a day, Joseph G. May, of Mountain Lake Park, yesterday was fined $50 and costs by Magistrate C. S. Zeller in Grantsville.

May paid $25 and costs on each charge.

May was arrested by Francis Ruge and Theodore Thorg, deputy game wardens, near Little Bear Creek, and in his possession were found sixteen trout, fourteen of which were undersized.

Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, said that violation of such a law in West Virginia would have cost May between $150 and $200 and in Pennsylvania $100 in pointing out that the fishing laws are more strict in the adjoining states.

Elks Hike Prizes In Essay Contest

Cash Awards Boosted from $19.50 to $55; Deadline Is Today

Charles M. Stump, state chairman of the Elks' national patriotic essay contest, announced yesterday that Cumberland Lodge No. 63 has increased its cash prizes from $19.50 to $55 for the four outstanding essays on "What Uncle Sam Means to Me." The essay contest closes today at noon at which time all competitors must be in the hands of the principals.

Originally the prizes were $10, $5, $2.50 and $2 for the four top essays but the local Elks lodge has boosted the awards to $25, $15, $10 and $5.

A committee composed of Stump, John H. Moser, Harry I. Stegmaler, Alvin Bergeron and Joseph K. Mooney will select the fifteen outstanding essays and turn them over for final judging to Dr. John L. Dunkle, Frostburg; William L. Gephart and Joseph B. Finan, of this city.

Ruth G. Harden, winner of the Elks' first contest in 1939, and Billy Davis, of Oldtown, Md., along with Stump talked relative to the contest Saturday over radio station WTBO. Stump and Frank Jaumot, Allegany high school senior, and winner of the recent local VFW essay contest, were heard in a broadcast last evening.

Prizes in the national contest are $1,000, $500 and $250 for first, second and third places, respectively.

Chatter is in receipt of a letter from Mayor Howard Jackson, of Baltimore, who enclosed a copy of a booklet entitled "You Can Defend America." Chatter is giving its readers some information about the booklet and believes it should be read by every red-blooded American.

A streamlined "total defense" plan for every American endorsed by General John J. Pershing is out today on newsstands across the country. It is contained in the covers of a thirty-two-page, colorful, cartoon-illustrated book called "You Can Defend America." Leaders of labor and management have acclaimed it as a practical program towards national unity and the solution of industrial strife holding up the national defense effort. The first printing is one million copies.

The veteran general of the United States Army who led the A. E. F. overseas during the last war, has turned a spotlight on the need for civilian action to strengthen the nation's inner lines of defense. He has broken precedent to write a foreword to this book, urging every American to read it and find his part in the home, in industry, in every walk of life.

With characteristic vigor and directness General Pershing writes:

"This little book is aptly titled 'You Can Defend America.' No patriotic citizen can read it without feeling its inspiration. None can fail fully to endorse its ultimate objective—the preservation of our precious heritage. It invokes the principles of good citizenship and the spirit of '76 and '17 in this new emergency confronting our great democracy. How each of us can do his part in the home, in industry, in every walk of life, is indicated clearly and frankly. I commend its message to every American."

"You Can Defend America" was prepared by citizen volunteers as a national service, in collaboration with Army and Navy officials and business and labor leaders. Industrial organizations, unions and other groups are sending copies to their members.

William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, gave indication of the widespread coverage planned for "You Can Defend America" in a statement urging that the book should be

Forest and Brush Blazes Sweep Over 350 Acres

Fires on Martin's and Collier's Mountains Difficult To Combat

Five brush and forest fires in Allegany county, two large ones about two miles apart, kept 120 men busy yesterday and last night, Urner Wigfield, district forest warden, reported.

Two fires about two miles apart on the South end of Martin's mountain and Collier's mountain had covered a total of 350 acres by 9 o'clock last night and were still being fought by approximately 100 men.

CCC men and nearby residents fought the fire on Collier's mountain which had spread over 300 acres last night. Fifty men, including employees of the nearby Consolidated Orchard Company, battled a 150-acre conflagration on the South end of Martin's mountain.

Fanned by a lively breeze and aided by dry brush and undergrowth, the fires spread rapidly and were difficult to combat, Wigfield said. The blaze on Martin's mountain was believed to have been started by brush burning.

Other fires reported yesterday which were brought under control by forest wardens and local helpers included a two-acre fire at Mink's Tavern, Route 40, a twenty-acre blaze on the East side of Martin's mountain near Flintstone, and another on Piney mountain near Eckhart.

Fire wardens were constantly on the alert yesterday and last night as the dry condition and wind made fires a menace throughout all Allegany county.

Dentistry in Defense Program Will Be Topic Of Dr. Cook's Talk

Dr. Albert C. Cook will speak on the topic, "The Role of Dentistry in the Defense Program," this evening at 7 o'clock over radio station WTBO.

Dr. Cook is president of the Allegany-Garrett County Dental Society.

The talk will be the eighth in a series of public information programs, sponsored jointly by the Junior Association of Commerce and the Junior Bar Conference of this area.

Choir Director And Wife Leave Here Tomorrow

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Ashley To Be Honored at Dinner Tonight

With a choice of two positions in either Philadelphia or New York, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Ashley, 24 Washington street, will leave Cumberland tomorrow following a farewell dinner tonight at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. The party will be given by the Community choir of which Ashley is director.

While Mr. and Mrs. Ashley have not yet decided which of the two positions to accept, both plan to continue their musical studies at either the University of Pennsylvania or New York university.

Came Here in 1936
It was largely through Felix Robinson, head of the Mountain Lake Choir Festival, that Ashley came to Cumberland in the summer of 1936. Ashley had been vacationing at Deep Creek Lake and was persuaded to take charge of a choir in Cumberland which had been organized by Mrs. Charles Donnelly.

After six rehearsals the choir entered the festival and was awarded third prize.

The desire to continue the organization now known as the Community choir and a position at the First Presbyterian church as minister of music brought Ashley to Cumberland to stay. Mrs. Ashley, also an accomplished musician, assisted her husband with his work after their marriage.

In speaking of the work of the choir, Ashley said that with three exceptions, the organization had not missed a weekly rehearsal since he first came to Cumberland. He expressed the hope that some graduate from the Westminster Choir School could be brought here to continue the work.

Good Voices Here
Speaking of music in Cumberland, Ashley said it was an amazingly interesting field, especially in vocal instruction.

"Cumberland has its share of good voices," he said, adding that many things had been started since he first came here in 1936.

Ashley, whose family home is in Baltimore, attended the University of Pittsburgh, Johns Hopkins university and the Westminster Choir School. Mrs. Ashley also from Baltimore, attended Roland Park Country School, Westminster Choir School, and the Peabody and Julliard Conservatories.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashley made their farewell public appearance here when they sang a duet at the Easter Sunday service at the First Presbyterian church.

Milton Mantell Cops First Prize In Print Contest

Judging System Adopted by Camera Club; Outing Planned to Capital

Milton Mantell's picture entitled "Waiting" was awarded first prize in the monthly print competition of the Cumberland Miniature Camera club, at a meeting last night in the Knights of Malta building, Prospect Square.

"Our Daily Bread," presented by James B. Smith, of Frostburg, won second place; Joseph C. Christopher's "Contentment" was third; Robert Stimler's "Winter Setting" was fourth and "Winding Stream," entered by Mrs. William Weatherholt, was fifth.

Randolph Millbolland, Sr., was winner of the portrait contest in which the portrait of Mrs. Edward D. Finan was used. James L. Weber captured second place and Leo Leasure was third.

A title contest in which the membership participated was won by Morris Fran, whose title "Dramatized Steel" was adjudged tops.

System Is Adopted
By a vote of the membership the system of judging for future print contests was finally settled at last night's meeting which attracted sixty persons, the largest attendance in many months. Under the system which went into effect last evening, the judges take all prints into an ante room and vote on the five outstanding ones. After a decision is reached the prints are hung on the wall for inspection. The same type of judging, it was pointed out, is used in the larger cities.

It was announced that the club will exhibit a group of pictures in the Cumberland Coin Club's Hobby Show which will be held April 21 to 25 in the Emmanuel Episcopal parish house. First and second prize winning prints for each month of 1940 will be placed on exhibition.

The annual picture judging contest is scheduled for Monday, May 12, at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club and trophies for the three outstanding prints will be awarded by the Harvey Jewelry Company.

A picture outing to Washington, D. C. is planned for Sunday, April 27. Approximately forty members will make the trip in a special coach on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. The members will leave here at 7 a. m. and return the same evening at 9 o'clock.

Alumni Orchestra Plans 'Pop' Concert

Departure from Classical Numbers To Feature Season Farewell

The Cumberland Alumni Orchestra will present a "pop" concert as its final program of the season late in May, according to Milton A. Holtz, director.

Holtz, who has directed the orchestra in two formal programs of classical music this season, said he believes the public will welcome a popular concert in contrast.

Addition of a vocal soloist, probably a soprano, will be another innovation at next month's concert, Holtz announced.

In view of the popular acclaim of the concert presented two weeks ago by the combined Alumni, Port Hill and Allegany high school orchestras, Holtz said he may primarily augment the Alumni for the coming program, to be offered at Allegany high school.

All Vestrymen Are Re-elected At Emmanuel Church Meeting

Hope Expressed Despite New Snag In Strike Talks

New Contract Presented at Conclusion of Six-Hour Conference

Representatives of the merchants and retail clerks adjourned shortly before midnight yesterday at the conclusion of a six-hour conference with L. J. Smith, federal conciliator, announcing that "there is a strong possibility that the strike may be settled today."

However, it was noted that representatives of both the merchants and the clerks were less optimistic than the conciliator although all concerned admitted that "some progress" had been made.

While it was agreed that on the whole yesterday's conference was emphasized by a co-operative spirit, there was one flurry shortly before midnight when the negotiators were admittedly tired after a long session of talk back and forth over the conference table.

That came when C. E. Stutzman, representative of the Teamsters and Chauffeurs union, produced a brand new proposed contract for platform men at Rosenbaum's and presented it to a representative of the merchants.

New Agreement Proposed
"These three employees through the teamsters' union agent then presented a proposed agreement in which were present most of the objectionable features that had by agreement been eliminated in the retail clerks' agreement including the closed or preferential shop."

"The merchants' representatives sensing another similar dispute and possible strike in the offing refused to negotiate further until the three employees involved assumed their former status as members of (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

"Flying Evangelist" Well-Known in Cumberland; Took Part in Municipal Campaign Here in 1938

Dan McNally, 40, the "flying evangelist," his wife, Dorothy, 27, and their daughter, Kathleen Maureen, four, were killed yesterday when their airplane, piloted by McNally, crashed and burned at Tri-Cities Airport, Binghamton, N. Y.

Witnesses said the plane crashed after going into a spin 100 feet off the ground. It burst immediately into flames. A fourth occupant, Mrs. Mary Wicks, 37, Binghamton, suffered a fractured hip when she was thrown clear of the plane.

McNally Well-Known Here
McNally, sometimes known as "Brother Dan" was well-known in the Cumberland vicinity. His longest sojourn in this area since his boyhood at Franklin, above Westernport, was during the 1938 municipal campaign when Dr. Thomas W. Koon defeated the late Harry Matheny for mayor after a blistering campaign.

As a youth, McNally was known as a "bad boy" life-time acquaintances recalled last night. It was only after a life of crime including a term in the penitentiary that McNally became an evangelist.

Since that time he had been preaching on an average of once a day. McNally started an evangelistic mission in Binghamton the night before the plane crash.

McNally was born July 22, 1898, and was the son of Daniel and Ellen (Brophy) McNally, the former a coal miner born in Blantyre, Scotland. He was taken out of school while in the fourth grade and put to work in coal mines of Maryland and West Virginia at the age of ten.

He ran away from home when he was thirteen. In 1916, at the age of eighteen, he was arrested in Salt Lake City for robbery of a wholesale drug house in Kansas City, Mo. He was sentenced to eight years of hard labor at the Missouri penitentiary in 1917 and escaped in 1918. A guard was killed. McNally was recaptured the same night.

He was rescued from an enraged mob of citizens by a captain of the prison guard. Two companions in the break received life sentences. Five years were added to McNally's original sentence.
